Many Nazi Bombers Arrive in French Syria and Iraq

British Send RAF To Smash German Movement Before Soldiers Arrive

Neutral Sources Report British Have Bombed One Syrian Airdrome; Will Attack Others

CAIRO, Egypt, May 15 (AP)—The British announced tonight that many German bombers and fighters were arriving on the airdromes of French Syria and Iraq, and stern orders went out to RAF and navy planes to smash the Luftwaffe invaders on the landing fields of both these countries.

(Neutral sources in Vichy reported the British already had attacked one Syrian airdrome, but neither the British nor the French confirmed the report.)

Informed sources at this headquarters of the British near east command said most of the German aircraft were bombers, that no troop-carrying planes had yet been sighted, but that fighters were transporting technicians, propagandists and other Nazi specialists to the middle-eastern scene of war or near-war.

Four large German planes—the first to pass through Syria—were escorted by French fighters, said Reuters, British news agency. A dispatch quoting AFI, the independent French news agency, these landed on Syrian bases three days ago and were followed by sixteen other planes in the next two days, the agency said. The planes were believed to have taken German military experts and technicians to Baghdad.

Officers in Baghdad

Italian and German staff officers, including two generals, were reported to have reached Baghdad, capital of Iraq, and a high Nazi personage was believed to have established himself at Beirut, in the French mandate.

Already, the RAF was announcing that planes of the fleet-air arm had entered the Iraq conflict and, in cooperation with regular RAF squadrons, was reducing to ashes the remaining barracks, gasoline stores, munitions plants and other military objectives.

But a conflict far wider was implied in the day's official statements from London and Cairo regarding the arrival of the Nazi planes and the British counter-action.

Hitler Seeks Oil

These statements gave substance to fears long expressed by the British: that Adolf Hitler is using the mandated territory of the Vichy French government to gain a military grip on the oil fields of Iraq while helping the Iraqis in their war with Britain, and to obtain a springboard for a south and west onslaught on the Suez Canal.

It appeared to be a fair inference that the astonishing flight to Britain of Rudolf Hess, the deputy Nazi leader, had spurred Hitler to earlier action than he had, perhaps, planned. The Iraqis have been fighting the British since the first of the month, and today was the first time there had been any real evidence of the British sending help to the Rashid Ali, Al Gallani, the coup d'etat premier.

WASHINGTON, May 16 (Friday)—The General Motors Corporation accepted early today the recommendations of the National Mediation Board for settlement of a dispute between the corporation and the United Automobile Workers CIO.

The company announced its acceptance several hours before the 11 a. m. deadline imposed by the board. The union had agreed to a strike in sixty plants of the corporation until that hour.

Pétain Declares France Will Keep Her World Rank

Chief of State Asks Public To withhold Judgement for Present

VICHY, France, May 15 (AP)—Chief of State Pétain told Frenchmen tonight that, if successful in current negotiations with Germany, "France will be able to rise above her defeat and maintain her world rank as a European and Colonial power."

Pétain's unexpected two-minute radio address, calling on the public to withhold judgment and maintain mental discipline, came as a growing impression was gained from informed circles that the current negotiations are gaining time for France.

These circles insist that no definite agreement has been reached, although a large system of collaboration is being established between conquering Germany and vanquished France.

Pétain said only that he approved the idea of the recent conference between Vice-Premier Admiral Jean Darlan and Adolf Hitler.

Reports circulating in Vichy that Darlan's next meeting will be in Paris with German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop were not confirmed, but some circles said this sounded logical, since detailed negotiations were now in order.

French Make Gains

Diplomatic circles considered that the French already have gained a great deal of time but now are approaching the crossroads of a definite choice.

This was held particularly true in view of reports that the British have bombed a Syrian airdrome because German planes allegedly have landed there. The French foreign office said it knew nothing of events (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

Hess Reported Sent to England By Adolf Hitler

Ernest Bevin, Minister of Labor, Calls Him a Murderer

LONDON, May 15 (AP)—A British cabinet officer declared today that Rudolf Hess was a calculating "murderer" who came to Britain seeking peace, not with a mad sympathy for Britons but with "a very sane concern for the German people"—and in the full knowledge of Adolf Hitler.

This estimate of the affair, made by Ernest Bevin, the Socialist minister of labor, sought to strike down as a blind, a deception, a "stunt," Berlin's insistence that Hess was a foolish, deluded self-appointed Messianic missionary.

"We agree with the German propagandists," said the minister in a speech before the Holborn Chamber of Commerce, "that Hess wants peace for the German people. We agree that he possesses secret information."

Calls Hess Villain

But it is not possible that his secret information is about such matters as (German) Balkan casualties, the state of Kiel and Hamburg x x x (Nazi bases long and heavily bombed?).

In a sharp attack that was not the first demand, oblique or open, that Hess be regarded as 100 per cent villain and no scrap of hero. Bevin announced the Nazi as "no man I would ever negotiate with."

"For a good many years," the minister went on, "I have had to deal with these totalitarian gentlemen and Communists and I have seen this kind of stunt over and over again. I am not going to be deceived by any of them."

Explains His Position

"You can understand by feeling about Hess when I tell you he was the man who collected every index card of every trade union leader in Germany and (of) the Social Democrats and when the time came they were either sent to concentration camps or murdered."

Discussing the German contention that Hess was "off his head," Bevin remarked sardonically:

"If every German were certified that who wanted peace you would easily put the same into the madhouses without overcrowding."

He made it plain that the speech (Continued on Page 21, Col. 2)

Creel Advocates Censorship of Cables and Radio

World War Official Would Not Restrict Operations of the Press

NEW YORK, May 15 (AP)—George Creel, chairman of the committee on public information in the World War, advocated today censorship of cables and radio without restriction upon the press in an article in Collier's.

He said such a censorship "will not touch opinion in any degree but x x x will prevent communication between potential enemies and their undercover agents in the United States."

With the adoption of his proposal, Creel said, "there will be no impairment of people's confidence in the news."

Calls Plan Foolish

Referring to his world war experience and present censorship methods, Creel said "that was the result of the voluntary censorship that hurt us most, just as it will work irreparable harm today if the foolish plan is not discontinued."

When the public knew that something was being kept from them the conviction grew that a great deal was being hidden, and this feeling lent itself to the manufacture and spread of every variety of wild and disintegrating rumor."

Creel said in the World War "virtually everything we asked the (Continued on Page 21, Col. 1)

Suspect Sabotage In Conflagration In Philadelphia

Million Dollar Damage Done To Lumber Stores Near Shipyards

PHILADELPHIA, May 15 (AP)—A huge store of lumber consigned to defense industries was destroyed today in a million-dollar fire that also endangered a Philadelphia shipyard, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation announced at once "there is a possibility of sabotage."

The fire, most disastrous in Philadelphia for a dozen years and one of the worst in the city's history, was discovered at 1:45 a. m. (EST) in the heart of the Wilson H. Lear Lumber Company yard.

Not until 8 a. m. was it brought under control and other neighboring buildings and homes in the closely-packed industrial area in the northeast section of the city pronounced out of danger.

Flames Sweep Wide Area

The flames left the block-square lumber yard a smoldering mass, destroyed ten homes and damaged twenty-five others, gutted the five-story Erik Jansson cabinet-making factory, and leaped to the roof of the machine shop of the Cramp Shipbuilding yard two blocks away.

Fire Marshal Jacob Clinton said the total loss was at least $1,000,000 and might be much higher.

En route to the scene, Dr. Pedro Carreras, 50, was killed in an automobile collision. Michael Regan, 71-year-old night watchman, was missing, apparently dead in the fire.

At least sixty of 400 firemen who responded to the six alarms were (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Ship Seizure Bill Wins In Senate by Big Vote

President Given Power To Requisition Alien Vessels and Use Them in Aiding the British

WASHINGTON, May 15 (AP)—By a big vote of nearly three to one, the Senate today approved the administration ship seizure bill, empowering the president to requisition alien vessels now idle in American harbors and use them in the national defense or British-aid programs.

The measure had already been passed by the House, but before going on to the White House for Mr. Roosevelt's signature, it first must go back to that body for routine action on minor Senate amendments.

The final vote found fifty-nine senators supporting the bill and twenty opposing it, fifteen of them Republicans. Ten Republicans, including the minority floor leader, Senator McNary (Ore.) voted for the measure.

Amendment Defeated

One big subordinate issue was involved in the controversy—whether the president should be permitted to transfer Axis ships to England. An opposition move to prohibit such procedure on the ground that it would constitute a "needless provocative act of war," was defeated 43 to 38.

Some eighty vessels are affected by the ship bill, including two German craft and twenty-eight Italian vessels. The bill is intended primarily to authorize the inclusion of the vessels in the shipping pool now being assembled for the service of the United States or Great Britain.

Dr. Otto Strasser Tells Of Plot To Oust Hitler

MONTREAL, May 15 (AP)—Dr. Otto Strasser, leader of the anti-Nazi Black Front movement, tonight said he had received from Germany just five weeks ago a secret report of a plan to overthrow Adolf Hitler.

He said his information came from a high official in the German foreign ministry, a personal friend. Strasser's statement was made in a broadcast over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Dr. Strasser, who spoke with what he termed "an exact knowledge of what is happening in Germany," said the Prussian militarist group has lost confidence that Hitler and the Nazi party can win the war.

Would Sacrifice Hitler

"Preparing the way to retreat for themselves, they are willing to sacrifice Hitler and the party," he added. "Naturally they are keen enough to postpone their military uprising until Hitler's first military defeat is (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

Vichy Government Seen As about To Enter New Alliance with Germany

President Implies That Peace and Safety of the Western Hemisphere Are in Danger from Agreement Between Darlan and Hitler; Normandie among Ten Big French Ships Seized

By J. C. STARK

WASHINGTON, May 15 (AP)—President Roosevelt appealed to France tonight not to deliver herself up to a Germany bent on "the utter destruction of liberty" and at the same time the United States coast guard took a dozen or more French merchant vessels in American waters into protective custody.

These steps were Washington's swift reaction to dispatches from abroad indicating that Vichy was throwing in its lot with the Nazis. The British were virtually accusing the French government of acting as a German ally by permitting Nazi planes to cross Syria to Iraq.

SURPRISE STATEMENT

In a surprise statement from the White House, President Roosevelt implied that France was about to enter an alliance with Germany which involved "the peace and safety of the Western Hemisphere."

After a long conference with secretary of state and Undersecretary Welles, the president declared that the American people could hardly believe that the French government would lend itself "to a plan of voluntary alliance implied or otherwise which would apparently deliver up France and its Colonial empire."

The surrender of this empire, the president added, would include "French African colonies and their Atlantic costs with the menace which that involves to the peace and safety of the Western Hemisphere."

NORMANDIE SEIZED

Shortly before the statement was issued, it was announced that the coast guard had placed armed guards aboard all French ships in American ports, including the great Luxury Liner Normandie at New York harbor.

French vessels had not been taken into custody at the time those of Germany, Italy and Denmark were seized several weeks ago.

(A bill permitting the president to put such foreign ships to work in the national defense or British-aid programs was passed today by the Senate.)

Follows Pétain Address
The Washington developments concerning Franco-American relations quickly followed an address by Marshall Henri Pétain of France, in which he declared that French-German negotiations had lighted up "the pathway to the future" and laid the groundwork for further discussions with the German government.

Pétain's speech was interpreted here to mean that his government had definitely embarked upon a course of close collaboration with Germany which might mean the surrender of French naval units, bases and colonial territories to be used against the British.

The text follows:
"The policy of this government in its relations with the French republic has been based upon the terms of the armistice between Germany and France and upon recognition of certain clear limitations imposed upon the French government by this armistice."

Surprised at France
Furthermore, we have had assurances given by the head of the French state on behalf of his government that it did not intend to agree to any collaboration with Germany which went beyond the requirements of that armistice agreement. This was the least that could be expected of a France which demanded respect for its integrity.

"The people of France, who cherish still the ideals of liberty and free institutions and guard that love of these priceless possessions in their minds and hearts, can be counted on to hold out for these principles until the moment comes for their reestablishment."

See Blow to Americans
"The people of the United States can hardly believe that the present government of France could be brought to lend itself to a plan of voluntary alliance implied or otherwise which would apparently deliver up France and its colonial empire, including French African (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Fire Ruins Hagerstown Apartment Building, Threatens Big Hotel

HAGERSTOWN, Md., May 15 (AP)—Fire tonight gutted the former Union hotel, recently converted into a five-story apartment building, and threatened to spread to other nearby buildings in the Hagerstown business section.

Firemen, called by a general alarm, concentrated their efforts on saving adjacent buildings—the Dagmar hotel and a three-story unoccupied building—and the old hotel Charles, back of the burning building.

Thousands of witnesses blocked the traffic drawn by flames which lighted the entire business district

The fire was first discovered shortly after 7:30 p. m. and was still burning fiercely at 9 p. m. Firemen, however, said the fire was under control.

All occupants of the apartment were forced into the street by the fire, which apartment managers said had caused damage upwards of $40,000.

Robert Pader of Baltimore entered the burning building to aid in rescue work and was trapped on the fourth floor for thirty minutes before firemen could rescue him. He was taken to Washington county hospital with burns which were believed not to be serious.

Start 4 Inquiries Into Burning of Baltimore Ships

Six-alarm Fire Does Great Damage; Reports Conflicting

BALTIMORE, May 15 (AP)—Four investigations were begun today to determine the cause of a six-alarm fire which swept through two light street wharves last night and destroyed the steamer Tolchester and river barge.

Officials said all investigations were being continued because of the "conflicting" stories. As soon as the fire was brought under control early this morning inquiries were started by Capt. Paul Tyler, head of the Baltimore office of the United States Steamboat and Navigation Service; the salvage corps under Chief Edward Warr; the incendiary division under Chief Thomas Heagerty, and the southern district police under acting Capt. Henry Kries.

Captain Warr said his investigation had "raised the possibility of the fire starting on the bow of the Tolchester or west of its gangplank." Police reports indicated it started in the hull of the Tolchester and southern district police said workmen had been cutting through steel bulkheading until shortly before midnight.

Ten of some 150 firemen fighting the blaze suffered minor injuries. Two fire boats as well as twenty-eight engines and six trucks were used to fight the flames which burned more than two hours and which were discovered shortly after midnight.

The steamer Southport, which caught fire before a second alarm was pulled, was towed from the burning wharf before being badly damaged. The Tolchester was gutted.

Albert L. Stephens, president of the Chesapeake lines to whose pier the fire spread, estimated damage there between $35,000 and $40,000. Tolchester line officials refused to estimate damages but pointed out that it would cost approximately $400,000 to replace the recently-overhauled Tolchester.

Pétain Declares

in French-mandated Syria, but neutral sources told of the airdrome attack.

The impression is gained that the French feel that they are forced to negotiate with Germany in order to live. Informed circles, for example, say there is less than a two-month supply of wheat in France and that essential gasoline supplies will be exhausted by June 1.

The reaction of the French man in the street—and perhaps of Admiral Darlan as well—apparently is that it doesn't make any difference what the negotiations are called, collaboration or any other name, so long as France gets a breathing spell.

Many Support Germany. On the other hand, there are numbers of Frenchmen who are committed to out-and-out collaboration with Germany.

The impression being fostered by authorized French circles is that the present situation is frankly one of compulsion but that it does not contain any menace as far as the United States is concerned—unless there should be a direct attack by the United States on French possessions.

These circles point out that the (anti-American) campaign in Paris is papers is German-inspired and does not represent the attitude of Frenchmen, and certainly not the attitude in the free zone.

Before Marshal Pétain's brief speech, the main factual development today was the return to Paris of Benoit Meschin, assistant secretary general of the cabinet vice-presidency under Darlan.

Meschin acted as interpreter between Darlan and Hitler at Berchtesgaden, and it was said in semi-official circles that he returned to Paris ahead of Darlan "specifically charged with maintaining political contact."

A few minutes before Pétain's speech, full censorship was re-established on all stories concerning the German-French negotiations.

"In both cases it would not be a peace," he said, "it would be only an armistice. Then Hitlerism and Prussianism, growing up together with the same aim of domination through force, would not only dominate Germany and Europe but the whole world."

Describing the flight of Rudolf Hess as "one of the most important events" in the last ten years, he said he thought it possible that Hess went to England with "peace proposals to save his master, the rulership of the party from internal defeat and last, but not least, his own life."

colonies and their Atlantic coasts with the menace which that involves to the peace and safety of the western hemisphere.

Tight-lipped coast guard officials were reticent about the purpose of their swift move in placing armed guards on French ships. They merely said "you can draw your own conclusions."

It was plain, however, that the government was taking no chances of sabotage should the craft fall under the control of the Reich.

Informed diplomatic circles here took the view that France was headed toward complete capitulation to Germany.

10 Vessels Involved
Coast guard headquarters said an estimated ten vessels were involved, four in New York harbor including the big liner Normandie, three in New Orleans, two in San Pedro, Calif., and another in San Francisco.

No reason was given for the order and officials said "you can draw your own conclusions."

The action followed signs from abroad of closer collaboration between Germany and the Vichy regime headed by Marshal Pétain. It was regarded as the United States reaction to that collaboration.

In addition to the Normandie, the other ships and the harbors in which they are docked were listed by the coast guard as:

New York—Fort Royal, Isle de Noirmoutier, Mont Everest.
New Orleans—Angouleme, Michigan, Touraine.
San Pedro—Yannes, Wisconsin.
San Francisco—Alencon.

overcome by smoke, exhaustion or heat. Deputy Fire Chief George Ferrier was stricken with a heart attack and was reported in serious condition.

Fifty persons were left homeless.

New Machines Damaged
The shipyard machine shop roof was badly damaged and water poured down in new machines moved in after the recent Cramp reorganization. H. Birchard Taylor, company vice-president, insisted, however, that there would be no delay in preparations to fill a $120,000,000 naval contract, including six light cruisers.

The fire destroyed 22,000,000 feet of lumber. Wilson H. Lear, lumber yard owner, said it was intended for the army, navy, arsenals and other defense agencies.

City authorities cooperated with agents of the F. B. I. in an investigation.

Patapsco Camp For C. O.'s Opens With 38 on Hand

Some of Conscientious Objectors Reclassified by Boards

By DONALD SANDERS

ELKRIDGE, Md., May 15 (AP)—Leadon skies and a drizzling rain greeted the first arrivals at the nation's initial camp for conscientious objectors in Patapsco state forest near here today.

There was no formal ceremony as the first group of seventeen young men arrived by auto from nearby Baltimore, but Paul Conly French, executive secretary of the National Service Board for religious objectors, characterized the venture as "a great opportunity" for the churches of America.

"I see here a possibility of preserving some degree of individualism," French said, "and in days to come that may be more important than we now realize."

Some Reclassified

Fifty objectors were originally scheduled to report for the opening of the camp, but Dr. Ernest A. Wildman, director, said he had received notifications from local draft boards that a number of the objectors had been reclassified. Dr. Wildman said he expected not more than thirty-eight men in the first group.

Late this afternoon twenty-five had reported and were established in the barracks which the camp inherited from the Civilian Conservation Corps.

The campers, representing seven eastern seaboard states, were greeted by an embrace.

FLASHES OF ARMY LIFE

(By The Associated Press)

PORT MEADE, S. D.—Private Pay B. Horse returned to the post from a visit in town.

"Who goes there?" a sentry challenged. "Private Horse," the soldier replied.

The pun-loving guard called out: "Advance, Private Horse, and be mechanized."

CAMP BLANDING, Fla.—Army line pieces are aggressive, too.

The alarm clock on a shelf above Corporal Ed Johnson's cot rang promptly at 5:30 a. m. the sleeper didn't stir. The clock, jiggling with vibration, "jumped" down on his head. He was up instantly.

CAMP WOLTERS, Tex.—Private Rudolph Gerber of the sixty-fourth infantry training battalion was the seventh son of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Gerber of Sun Prairie, Wis., to don khaki.

Brothers Max and Ernest are corporals and Brother Albert is a sergeant at Camp Livingston, La.; Brother William is a sergeant at Camp Forrest, Tenn.; brothers Frederick and Bernard are privates at Camp Grant, Ill.

PORT SHERIDAN, Ill.—Bill De Correvont, famed footballer and a long-hitting outfielder on Northwestern University's baseball team, hit two home runs during a game against a soldier's nine.

As the second ball disappeared in the distance, the third baseman on the military club shouted to his mates:

"Don't worry boys. He'll be playing on our side next year."

CAMP BOWIE, Tex.—Two sergeants chewed tobacco while they attended a class.

Suddenly, a general entered. Just as quickly, the quids were swallowed. Presently the medical corps had a couple of emergency cases on its hands.

Heavy Guns Mounted

With heavy guns already mounted and virtually ready for duty, the sleek $70,000,000 warship will take its place with the fleet "probably by July 1," Admiral Watson disclosed.

The Washington now becomes the seventeenth battleship on the line, equipped with triple gunned turrets, armored against attack from the sky and "capable of taking on anything afloat."

Her heaviest armament includes nine sixteen-inch guns, eight anti-aircraft guns and twelve five-inch secondary guns. The rest of her destructive force is a naval secret.

Demand Surrender Of French in Syria

NEW YORK, May 15 (AP)—General Georges Catroux, leader of the Free French forces in the middle east, has demanded the surrender of French authorities in Syria, the British radio declared tonight in a broadcast heard by CBS.

The British radio, quoting advice just received from Cairo, Egypt, said General Catroux had sent an emissary to the French authorities in Syria with his demand.

Broadcasters See Danger to Radio In Order of FCC

Freedom Endangered, Miller Says in Statement at St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, May 15 (AP)—The head of the National Association of Broadcasters declared tonight nothing was offered by Chairman James L. Fly of the Federal Communications Commission to change their belief "the very freedom of radio was being endangered."

Fly charged earlier at a press conference that NAB was dominated by a small monopolistic group and challenged their right to speak for the entire radio industry.

"Two men run the show," Fly asserted, "and a couple of others do the chores."

Although he did not mention names, his remarks admittedly were directed at officials of the National Broadcasting Company, the Columbia Broadcasting System and the NAB organization.

Fly said the NAB's type of management reminded him "of a dead mackerel in the moonlight—it both shines and stinks."

Previously Fly had criticized the two networks for their control of eighty-six per cent of radio's nighttime power and wattage.

Neville Miller, NAB president, who is leading the fight against the FCC's recent anti-monopoly report ordering drastic changes in the radio networks setup, replied curtly that actions at the association's convention here this week prove "we have made up our minds."

The Important Mission Of the Opposition

A LIVE, VIRILE REPUBLICAN PARTY, functioning in every town and hamlet in the country, is needed today, Mrs. Charles W. Weiss Jr., president of the National Federation of Republican Women's Clubs, told the Republican women of Indiana the other day. She pleaded for a minority party that "dares to speak out constructively."

This is no time, of course, for a minority party to assume a fixed attitude of opposition regardless of the cause or the situation. The parties are not far apart on main issues such as the defense policy. They are agreed in their faith in free government and in their determination to give no encouragement to the Axis bid for world domination.

But there are times when the administration needs the stimulation and constructive criticism of a vigorous and alert opposition. Its mistake in refusing to reduce non-defense expenditures, its failure to maintain production during labor negotiations, and its continued reliance on inexperienced politicians in its efforts to manage industries on a war production basis should be opposed with all the strength that the opposition can command. Loyalty to the best interest demands it, and the Republican party is the solid opposition agency that has the power to be heard.

The party should be held in readiness for the job which it will have to undertake when the country runs through its credit, discovers the fallacy of synthetic economies and turns to the rebuilding of its foundation according to the teachings of experience and tradition. It is a great mission, and it should be more zealously cherished and developed.

It is for these important reasons that the people of Western Maryland should elect A. Charles Stewart, Republican nominee, to the national House of Representatives at the special election to be held May 27 in the Sixth congressional district.

Highway Intersections Should Be Visible

IN THE INTEREST of public safety, the Keystone Automobile Club has issued a bulletin calling upon property owners and the authorities to aid in accident prevention by trimming trees, hedges and other growths which obscure vision at intersections.

"Our warning of this danger has resulted in appreciable improvement of highway conditions," says Edward P. Curran, safety director of the club. "In many cases, property owners do not fully realize the hazard motorists are subjected to, and are quick to take remedial action when the matter is brought to their attention."

The club official says the danger is particularly serious at points where "slow" and "stop" signs are obscured.

"Motorists on the 'stop' street," he says, "enter intersections without warning of danger or knowledge of law violation. At the same time, drivers on highways which the obscured signs are supposed to protect are placed in peril because they are expecting cross traffic to give them right of way and are unprepared for the emergency when vehicles from the cross road loom before them."

Motorists should take cognizance of these conditions and approach intersections at greatly reduced speed.

Where Teamwork Could Be Better Co-ordinated

THE LACK OF UNITY among the people regarding the foreign policy of the nation is matched by the lack of teamwork among administration figures.

As the Pittsburgh Press says, one of the serious problems of a "quarterback" — as President Roosevelt has described himself — is to keep his team from getting off-side, his subs from standing on their heads and his water-boys from calling signals. Yet such things have been happening in official quarters, and if they have not given the quarterback a headache it is queer.

"Senator Pepper, who has a reputation at home and abroad as a presidential trial-balloonist," says the Press, "proposes that the United States seize territories of France, Spain and Portugal and that American aviators bomb Tokyo into a shambles. Of course as an individual the senator has a right to favor such aggression against countries with which this nation is at peace."

"But, because of the dangerously embarrassing reactions abroad to this alleged presidential spokesman, Secretary of State Hull has had to disavow such a terrorist policy."

"Captain James Roosevelt, officially a marine corps observer and reputedly a presidential agent in the Far East and the Near East, announces in Cairo that the United States 'except for sending troops, already is in the war.' Has the constitutional prerogative to pass on this matter been set aside? How long would any other officer in the armed forces escape reprimand for such a public statement?"

"Even the usually proper Secretary of War Stimson, after confessing that the army is not prepared for war and will not be for a year at best, barges over into the provinces of the secretary of navy and secretary of state in proposing a naval war."

The Press suggests that the president, the secretary of State and the chairmen of the responsible congressional committees should be left to declare administration foreign policy. The sooner that is done the safer it would appear to be for all concerned.

Another "Hangover" Warning Comes

THE "SULFA" DRUGS now take rank with intoxicants as forbidden things for those who drive cars. Warning has been issued by the Journal of the American Medical Association that those who are taking such drugs should not drive an automobile nor make any important decision while their effects last. Sulfanilamide and its derivatives, it says, impair the muscular co-ordination and the judgment of persons who take them.

The Journal emphasizes that these medicines, like some other drugs, have not only a beneficial effect in combating certain diseases, but also have secondary toxic effects that are "potentially dangerous to both patient and community."

Patients who are locomotive engineers, airplane pilots and mechanical workers should not engage in their work until the effects of the drug wear off, the Journal says. In the case of airplane pilots the time is four days. "Patients should, . . . preferably stay at home and at rest while taking the drug," the Journal advises, and not "drive an automobile, make any important decision or sign any papers while the drug is being administered."

The old "hangover" it appears, is just as bad from whatever source. Forewarned, however, is forearmed, for which reason the warning is here passed on to readers.

The Associated Press Gains In Foreign News Preference

MENTION was made recently in this department of the comparative performance of the Associated Press foreign staff. It was shown, among other things, that an AP percentage of beats had been scored averaging about three to one over all other services and "specials" combined.

During the two weeks between April 21 and May 5, hundreds of copies of member newspapers which also have other wire services were checked by the AP management for a comparison of the play on foreign news.

Five hundred newspapers gave the AP dispatches principal play, while 122 gave it to all the other services and "specials" together. This shows a four to one preference for the Associated Press service over all others.

The lesson is obvious—call for your Associated Press newspapers.

More Money but Where Is It?

THERE IS MORE MONEY in circulation in the United States than ever before in the history of the nation. Hold your horses—here are the figures:

On April 30 there was $9,070,707,797 in coin and currency in circulation outside the treasury and federal banks, or an average of $68.39 for each man, woman, and child in the United States, an increase of $11.11 per capita over April 30, 1940, and of $1.07 over March 31 this year.

The mazuma in circulation comes to approximately twice as much per capita as it did in pre-depression days.

Even so, there are many who are wondering just where all this new money is.

When Uncle Sam reaches the point of turning out those 500 bombers a month, Hitler may revise his estimate that the Nazi regime will last a thousand years.

In diverting ships to Britain, America may lose much of its foreign food supply. But French fried potatoes and chop suey will not be cut off.

Twenty-second anniversary of the gasoline tax was recently observed. Nobody celebrated it.

The Spirit That Laughs at Us

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Some of the words men write are a sedative. Some are a stimulant. Some lift us into the skies. Some push us down into the mud. Some bore us, some please us, some anger us.

Of all the passages in literature I remember most frequently these paragraphs by George Meredith. (That is, I remember them most AFTER I have made an ass of myself—never in time to save me from being an idiot.) Meredith was writing about the Comic Spirit above us.

"If you believe that our civilization is founded in common sense," he wrote, "you will when contemplating men discern a Spirit overhead, not more heavenly than the light flashed upward from glassy surfaces, but luminous and watchful; never shooting beyond them, nor lagging in the rear; so closely attached to them that it may be taken for a slavish reflex, until its features are studied. It has the sage's brow, and the sunny malice of a faun lurks at the corners of the half-closed lips drawn in an idle wariness of half-tension. That slim feasting smile, shaped like a long-bow, was once a big round satyr's laugh, that flung up the brows like a fortress lifted by gunpowder."

"The laugh will come again, but it will be of the order of the smile, finely tempered, showing sunlight of the mind, mental richness rather than noisy enormity."

"Men's future upon earth does not attract it; their honesty and shapeliness in the present does; and whenever they wax out of proportion, overblown, affected, pretentious, bombastic, hypocritical, pedantic, fantastically delicate; whenever it sees them self-deceived or hoodwinked, given to run riot in idolatries, drifting into vanities, congregating in absurdities, planning shortsightedly, plotting dementedly; whenever they are at variance with their professions, and violate the unwritten but perceptible laws binding them in consideration to one another; whenever they offend sound reason, fair justice; are false in humility or mixed with conceit, individually or in the bulk—the Spirit overhead will look humnely malign and cast an oblique light on them followed by volleys of silvery laughter. That is the Comic Spirit."

George Meredith, who wrote that, was a famous novelist in his time. . . . So wise, with a pen in his hand, that he could write those understanding paragraphs. But in action he was so snobbish that he did not want people to know his father was a tailor. He was ashamed of that humble useful man.

And whenever the Comic Spirit thought of George Meredith, I'm sure he must have laughed his silvery laughter.

Johnson Scores Ickes's Argument About Criticism

WASHINGTON, May 15—Secretary Ickes has frequently said he wanted to be a columnist.

Hugh S. Johnson, who calls them calumnists, and now he has gone and done it for the N. A. A. . . . His first offering argues that the people who criticize the president for implying that Lindbergh is a "Copperhead" are convicted of their own mouths of wanting to limit the president's right of free speech. If Lindbergh's right of free speech included a right "to flay the president's foreign policy," Mr. Ickes thinks that the president's right of free speech included a right to call Lindbergh a Copperhead. "The Bill of Rights," says Mr. Ickes, "protects the black-guard to the same extent that it does the gentleman." Boy, how glad Harold should be of that!

By Adroit Innuendo

Of course anybody that criticized the president for calling a man of opposing opinion any name his imagination could invent, and based that criticism on any legal restriction on such billingsgate, doesn't know his law. There is such a thing as the law of libel and the president has no more immunity from that than any other citizen but, while the president never took any laurels as a lawyer, he is lawyer enough not to come right out and accuse a respected citizen of treason. He does such things by adroit innuendo, as in the reference, in respect of Lindbergh, to Vallandigham, who was tried without a jury and banished for making a violent pro-peace speech while this country was at war and fighting for its very life.

There still remains also an unwritten law of personal satisfaction for an unbearable insult by any man to another man, delivered face to face. "When you call me that, smile," may not be listed among the legal rules in text books of criminal law, but it is so firmly written in the hearts of he-Americans who make most jokes that it might as well be. The president has been known to say that another man who criticized his actions would have been called by a third man "a liar, a coward and a cad." But that also was an implication, and after all he is president of the United States.

Position Counts

No, it is no limitation on the president's right of free speech, under the Bill of Rights, the law of libel, or the unwritten law of personal satisfaction that aroused criticism when he answered an earnest and sincere argument with an epithet—when he sought to use his high and almost sacred office to blast with a lethal, unfair and untruthful word the character and standing of an heroic American. I don't like to use the words because English is good enough in ninety-nine ninety-nine out of a hundred percent of cases and because they have other and inappropriate implications, but there is such a thing as a "noblesse oblige," which means something like "your position above your fellowmen prohibits you from using the weapons of the gutter."

So far as I know, Lindbergh never used a disrespectful word toward the president. This country is not at war. Lindbergh used arguments against our going to war. He was arguing for no less and no more than the president had repeatedly promised he would not do, but that all the world believes he is trying to do as fast and as hard as he can induce public opinion to follow him—however reluctantly.

Must Preserve Right

As this column has repeatedly pointed out, it does not agree with some of Lindbergh's arguments but it does respect his utter fearlessness in making them. It will fight for his right to utter them until we have taken the last fearful maniacal step into the bloody turmoil of a war we did not start, for a nation whose interests are not

KILLED BY BOMB

Closest connected with the Supply Ministry's "scientific" department the Earl of Suffolk and Berkshire was killed by a bomb which also killed his secretary and six soldiers. His mother was the former Marquess of Hyndley, youngest daughter of the late Levi Z. Leiter of Chicago.

CONFUSION IN PARADISE

Republicans Plan Vigorous Campaign To Win a House Majority Next Year

By CHARLES P. STEWART
 Central Press Columnist

As chairman of the Republican National Committee, Congressman Joseph W. Martin, of Massachusetts, who also is minority leader in the House of Representatives, is concentrating on the job of getting a G. O. P. majority into the lower branch of the national legislature at the 1942 election of the country's lawmakers.

Joseph Martin

He can't possibly get such a majority into the Senate. The senator's terms expire only one-third of them at a time, and the Democrats' senatorial predominance is so great at present that the Republicans still will be narrowly outvoted in that chamber even if they win every seat at stake next year, which, of course, they can't do. However, it's at least theoretically possible for them to gain control of the representative house, since those boys are all chosen or rechosen biennially.

Feather in Cap

And it will be a rare feather in Joe Martin's cap if he can get his party into just one of Capitol Hill's two majorities for the last half of President Roosevelt's third term.

In an odd way the latest census returns, especially for Pennsylvania, may count considerably as a deciding factor in the contest. Why so and why is Pennsylvania particularly called for some words of explanation.

Well, succeeding censuses show various shifts in local populations growth. There isn't much shrinkage anywhere, but some states' populations grow faster than others. If a state lags it's likely to lose slightly in the number of national representatives it's entitled to. When this happens the affected state is expected to redistrict itself congressionally. It isn't done congressionally, it's done by the legislature of the state in question. If a legislature doesn't attend to it, then that state's next congressional election is at large—not as per each of its districts.

New York's Case

For instance, New York state gained a couple of seats on the strength of past censuses, but didn't redistrict itself. Consequently it elects forty-three of its representatives by district, with two at large; the whole state votes on 'em. Now under the most recent census, the Empire commonwealth gains another seat. If it doesn't redistrict it'll have three congressmen-at-large. But a lone congressman, added or subtracted, out of a total of 435 doesn't greatly matter.

The same census trims Massachusetts' delegation of fifteen to fourteen. The Godfish state, though will redistrict itself, to a certainty. There are various other changes that don't materially signify.

But Pennsylvania? . . . The Quaker realm, next after New York the most populous subdivision in the land, is pared down from thirty-four to thirty-three representatives. Unless it redistricts itself the entire thirty-three will be chosen at large—by a state-wide vote, all of 'em.

Now, thirty-three, even out of a 435 total, is a pretty large mouthful. If one political party wins the entire outfit, added to what it can pick up elsewhere, it's liable to make a sizeable dent in the next House of Representatives.

And both parties in Pennsylvania, I hear from Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and thereabouts, have a notion that they can swing the state in 1942.

At present, with nineteen Democratic to fifteen Republican Representatives in Washington, it looks New Dealish. Nevertheless, it normally is a Republican commonwealth.

Too Much Grabbing

Each group in the legislature, from all accounts, is inclined to make a grab for the whole aggregation, rather than to deal with the situation by districts.

But suppose one side or the other decides that it would be better to redistrict. Then what? Ah, there's another rub. Pennsylvania has a Republican governor and state Senate, but a Democratic state House of Representatives. Senate and House can deadlock with no trouble whatever—whereupon no redistricting; a solid block of thirty-three with whichever party wins 'em, in the next national House of Representatives.

It's worth remarking that the Pennsylvania representatives in Washington want to be redistricted. Each of 'em thinks he has his present home district under his thumb and he greatly prefers not to be bumped into a state-wide fight, the result of which he's uncertain. But that's his personal preference. It isn't necessarily his party's broad strategy.

A Badge Of Honor

From the Uniontown, Pa., Morning Herald

The men of Vichy may feel that they are upholding their own conception of what constitutes the unity of France by depriving such distinguished figures as Mile. Eve Curie and Henry Bernstein of French citizenship. But there can be few Americans who do not feel that Petain's government is, by such actions, widening the gap between the France whose culture and scientific freedom this country loved and respected and the mechanistic state that Nazi pressure and example would set up in its place.

The old France, the France that still exists and that will flourish again after the tempest of Hitlerian wrath has passed, was not built of the precepts of politicians or the official papers to which they affixed their signatures. It was a thing of the spirit, a way of life and of thought, in which no minority, no parliament could grant citizenship.

Mile. Curie and the free spirits whom she represents are inseparable part of that way of life, no matter how far the chances of war and the malice of little men drive them from their homeland. They have honorably chosen the difficult path which to them, as to the great bulk of Americans, is the only one whereof France may be recreated in its old grand image.

The stigma which the temporary regime now in power in that unhappy country seeks to impose upon them is no dishonor, save to those who would inflict it. Rather, it is a badge of honor, a certificate of fidelity to a great nation and a great human tradition.

Swopping Vogue Is Being Revived Over the Country

By EDWIN C. HILL

A drugstore philosopher of our acquaintance expounds an interesting idea. He says that democracy is closer to life than any other form of social organization because it builds its own antibodies. Allowing for a certain loss in transmission, his high-voltage idea seems to be that if we can just keep our system flexible and working, it finds its own offset and cure for whatever ails us.

We remember, in our youth, getting more out of lively stable and drugstore philosophers than we do now out of Edgington or Jeans, chiefly because they are always ready with an illuminating or clarifying "for instance." Here's my friend with the case in point:

Where Expected

"Now you take this cartel business. They say there won't be any more swapping and trading and dickering in the world. Nations, in order to stay in business, will have to lump up billion-dollar lots of this or that and dump them at each other any way they can, with nobody really in business but the governments. Some say that that was what brought on the war. Tariffs, etc., choked ordinary trading so the governments had to take a hand, and when governments can't doctor, they start shooting. They aren't so smart as ordinary people."

"Well, I just knew that something would begin to boil up in opposition, and here it is right in New England where you would expect it to be, and where a jug-handled deal will put a cartel out of business any time."

My friend took out of his pocket a small, tightly printed magazine called "The Trading Post," published at Dukin, N. H. It bears on its masthead the legend: "For Swapping, Buying and Selling Everything." It is a revival, as my friend pointed out, of the original Yankee "Swappers' Columns" and contains eight pages of exchanged offers which, as my friend cited, are proof that the spirit of David Harum is very much alive in New England and it will take a while of a lot of cartelization to iron it out. Here are a few of the proffered "swaps":

Harness for Stove

"Have a single express harness, single driving harness, single tip-cart harness and single tip-cart to swap for Franklin stove, wheelchair, wheels or sheep."

"I have an oval-shaped love-seat in good condition. What have you to offer? Humourists need not reply."

"I want to swap my brand-new bronze ladies' compact for old buttons or bric-a-brac. What do I hear?"

"I am a Protestant girl in the thirties and would like to swap letters with young men and women of equal age or more; those interested in photography or church work. Who has a twelve-bar auto harp in good condition and what do you want for it?"

"Will swap a Brunswick combination billiard and pool table, with oak finish and library top, for a pump and tank outfit."

Pistols Desired

"Have a pair of lady's riding boots, size seven, also riding pants and whip; band uniform, coat, pants, size 38. Will swap for old or new pistols." "My heart is set on a portable radio. If I can't have that, I would like to correspond with a healthy, lonesome widower; must be cheerful."

"Have Holy Bible, 1892 Jubilee edition. I want woodworking tools."

"Have an old-fashioned five-string banjo. Would like two gallons of maple syrup." "Have mandolin with case. Will swap for baby's bathinet." "Have manicure set. Will swap for canned dog food, or maybe a few puppy toys that he can't destroy."

Postoffice for Chickens

"I have a post office, size 36 by 53, to swap for Rhode Island Red or New Hampshire Red chickens."

"Will swap young raccoon for a pair of German fitch."

"Barker's chair and new galvanized boiler. What have you?" "Two volumes of the Life of General Grant. Would like a pair of love-birds."

"Buckeye incubator for an accordion."

"I'll swap a typewriter, a shotgun and a right-handed sling for a tandem bicycle."

There are hundreds of these offers. My friend noted that Brazil has destroyed $500,000,000 of surplus coffee in the last four years. "Yankees wouldn't do that," he said. "They swap it for something and, in the long run, wouldn't take the short end of the deal. Those trading posts are starting up everywhere. Democracy finds its own cures for whatever gets the matter with it." 1941. King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Robert W. Fink Takes Miss Elinor Boyd as His Bride

Are Married in Pretty Ceremony in Emmanuel Episcopal Church

Other Social News On Page 18

Emmanuel Episcopal church, Washington street, was the setting at 8 o'clock last evening for the marriage of Miss Elinor Boyd and Robert W. Fink, with the Rev. David Cartwright Clark, rector, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Thurston Boyd, 501 Washington street, and a granddaughter of the late Chief Justice A. Hunter Boyd, and on the maternal side granddaughter of the late Arthur Shriver, former editor of the old Daily News.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Fink, 121 Polk street.

The church was beautifully decorated with calla lilies, candles and palms. A large seven-branch candelabrum stood on either side of the altar.

Sister Is Maid of Honor

Mrs. William Oswald presented an organ recital for a half hour preceding the ceremony, including the "Ave Maria," Schubert; "Dreams," Wagner; "Ich Liebe Dich," Greig; "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," Sampon and Deliah, Saint Saens; and the "Swan," Saint Saens. The recessional was "Tannhauser" Wagner.

The bride entered the church to the strains of "Lohengrin," Wagner, and was given in marriage by her father.

Mrs. James Thomas White was her sister's matron of honor; Miss LeOra Eggleston, this city, and Miss Henrietta Minor, Charlotte, N. C., were the bridesmaids.

James Thomas White was Mr. Fink's best man; Bert A. Mason, Jr., Francis Denver Bowen, Freddie D. Steadman, Wilbur M. Buchanan, Homer A. Stoddy, this city, and J. Hodge Smith, Baltimore, were the ushers.

The bride was lovely in a gown of pure white bridal satin, made with a fitted bodice, heart shaped neckline, long lily point sleeves and a full skirt forming a long circular train. Duce lace was applied in the bodice. Her flowing tulle veil was held with a coronet of orange blossoms and fell the length of the gown's train, a finger tip veil covered the face. She wore her grandmother's pearls.

Girls Should Not Hold Affections As Cheap Bargain

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Here's an extract from a letter written by a distracted girl who doesn't understand why her boy friend hangs up the telephone receiver when he recognizes her voice. She finds it hard to believe that he's sick and tired of her cloying devotion!

"I seem to have lost all my pride when he is concerned," she says. "I thought he cared very much for me, but now he seems to turn away. When I call him up, he cuts the conversation short and hangs up. My friends have told me he speaks of me as a 'telephone hound.' I could understand it, if I ever did anything mean to him, but I have always given him only my deepest love."

She has never heard, poor girl, the old adage that if a girl throws herself at a man's head, she's likely to find her self at his feet. Men who are unremittently sought after when they are plainly bored by the attentions paid them have the feeling of hunted creatures, and a hunted thing fights desperately to escape.

Steady Diet Palls

"Depest love" such as this girl says she has always given her young man, palls if you make a steady diet of it. The cheap, salted peanut never tastes so good as when you've worked your way through a large box of "somebody's best" candy.

My correspondent didn't want me to give all of her letter, fearing it would be recognized, but I don't believe I'll be breaking faith if I say that "petting" and hand-holding appear to have been the specialties of this affair from first to last. Indeed, I'm afraid there was very little else. "So the young man became tired of the too-easy kisses and now hangs up the receiver when he recognizes his girl's voice on the phone.

It's strange, but that cruel insult doesn't seem to cure her of her infatuation, and she writes me a long letter to ask how she can win him back.

One Good Formula

Alas, there's no magic formula for winning them back. But there is a magic formula that may be invoked for keeping them, and that is: Don't be cheap. Bargains in affection, like bargains on the marked-down counter, are open to suspicion. What is worth while is harder to get.

I know that manners, customs, even morals, have changed in the last generation, but there is somequaintance without an introduction, don't be surprised if the young man drops you and gets tired of his "bargain counter" playmate. It's a case of "easy-come, easy-go," so there's no use crying about it.

A square headed screw that can be turned with a wrench has been invented for use in hard woods.

A GOOD SCOTCH IDEA
NEVER REFUSE to take a trick, when able to, unless you have a definite reason for letting your opponent have it. This applies especially to the use of the ace in the dummy's suit, during play of a No Trump contract. Usually there is no sound reason for failure to play it on the first lead unless you are waiting to kill off an honor of some kind, or unless there is apparently a chance to block the suit because the dummy lacks side entries.

East, following a habit, ducked and the declarer then came to his hand with the club 4 to the K for a lead of the diamond 7. West played the 10 and declarer played low from the dummy, hoping the situation was as it was. East, of course, had to win this. three more diamond tricks, another club top and the spade A, making his contract.

East should have played his diamond A on the first trick of the suit. Not only did he have no reason to hold up, since the spade A was in dummy, but he had an extra reason—card-reading. He should have read his partner for three diamonds to the J-10, as declarer, with either of those cards, plus the 9 in dummy, should have led his minor honor at first. If East had knocked off the diamond Q with his A, he not only would have made West sure of a trick in the suit, but could have immediately knocked out South's last heart stopper while West waited for his own diamond trick. By so doing he could have assured the defenders three tricks in hearts, plus two in diamonds, enough to beat the contract.

Long Period of Scientific Research Is Required to Develop Modern Drugs

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Every once in a while some crank arises who talks about the advantage of Nature's methods of cure—air, water, food, exercise, light, etc. This would be all very well and certainly nobody denies the value of these methods of treatment, but the enthusiast usually ends up his sermon with some such statement as that doctors prefer to use poisonous drugs rather than these natural methods of treatment.

Now, the fact is that drugs are just as natural methods of treatment as water and air, and light and they still remain the most effective means of treatment in the doctor's armory. Why isn't the action of a plant as much one of Nature's treatments as to the action of a food? There is nothing superstitious about the action of drugs. They have been, for years, studied in scientific laboratories and their use is based upon the most exact science.

Modern Use of Drugs

A good account of the place of drugs in modern medicine is a recent book "Magic in a Bottle" by Milton Silverman (publishers—The Macmillan Company, New York, 1941). It recounts in popular and semi-fictional style a number of discoveries of the valuable drugs which we are using today.

The first chapter is on the "Conquest of Pain," and recounts the development of our knowledge of opium and morphine. Other chapters are on the alkaloids, an old housewife's recipe (digitalis or foxglove), cocaine, the fever fighters (aspirin), the hypnotics (the barbiturates), and finally "The Red Assassin," the story of Prof. Domagk and sulfanilamide.

Each of these stories illustrates certain principles in the development of the usefulness of a drug.

In the case of the discovery of the antipyretic drugs which are so valuable in reducing fever, and especially in rheumatism, they were developed by Prof. Hermann Kolbe at the University of Leipzig, at the suggestion of Prof. Thiersch. Thiersch knew that carbolic acid would kill germs but, of course, it was dangerous to give internally. Kolbe suggested that carbolic acid could be modified to produce salicylic acid and that salicylic acid in the body would release carbolic acid slowly. They found that the principle action of salicylic acid was to reduce the temperature of a patient, no matter what infection he had. From the start they made also antipyrene and phenacetin.

In the course of time they stopped using carbolic acid and used crude aniline dye as the source from which they obtained their drugs.

When Kolbe produced salicylic acid, another derivative was obtained called acetylsalicylic acid. Nobody paid any attention to this until 1899—so recent is our knowledge of certain drugs. Then the staff chemist, Felix Hoffman, of the Bayer Company, found that acetylsalicylic acid would help his father's rheumatism, as well as reduce temperature; it was less irritating to the stomach and less poisonous generally; larger doses of it could be given. Because it is found in concentrated amounts in spirea plants, it is now known as "aspirin."

Questions and Answers

D. B.:—"Will you please tell in your column if, after years of use, there are harmful or habit-forming qualities in the following formula: sodium acetylsalicylate, calcium-sodium phosphates, sodium bicarbonate, sodium citrate?"

Answer—No. This is a simple mixture of aspirin with alkalis, which is good for functional headaches and indigestion; possibly for arthritis.

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY (Distributed by Central Press Association)

EARLY BLIGHT OF POTATOES
In order to have a bountiful yield of good-sized potatoes, the foliage of the plants must be kept healthy. This is especially important because the food for the potato itself is really manufactured in the foliage. Anything which destroys the foliage tends to injure and dwarf the development of the potatoes underground.

When potato plants reach a height of four inches they should be sprayed every 10 to 14 days with Bordeaux mixture, or dusted with copper-lime. This dusting should not be done during the heat of the sun. Early morning or in the evening are the best times to spray the plants.

The accompanying Garden-Graph shows the first telltale signs of blight on plant foliage. Unless prevented or cured by frequent dustings, these brown patches on the leaves spread until the entire leaf and stem becomes infected; and this in turn checks the root development underground and curtails the yield of potatoes.

More than twelve million proof gallons of brandy are used annually in wine manufacture in the U. S., according to the Census bureau.

THE DAILY STORY
BIG TIME
 Marianne Changes Her Tactics When She Finds That the Town's Best Date Like 'Em Grown Up and Sensible

By JOSEPH BARTON

Marianne was too preoccupied with her private thoughts to call out her usual greeting to her mother when she arrived home from school. She glanced at the mantel clock and swiftly calculated. There would be a full two hours before supper—two hours more to spend in working on her first very own formal evening gown.

"You shouldn't work so hard at that dress, dear," her mother's voice gently admonished from the door way. "After all, it isn't three weeks until the senior formal, is it?"

"I've got to, Mother," Marianne gently laid out the white, shimmering folds of the dress upon the top of the bed, feeling proud of the dress because she had done it herself—and a bit ashamed because it had been a necessary task. "What with the final examinations coming and a lot of extra activities along with them, I won't have any too much time!"

"This one dance isn't so very important, child!" her parent predicted. "There will be plenty of others to come." Marianne didn't say anything, because there was nothing to say.

It was queer how older persons could lose the right perspective on things! She wondered if her mother had ever felt as she did, with her 18th birthday and graduation from high school and her first formal dance all coming practically at once. It was a job just to keep them all in focus at the same time!

"Who is taking you to the dance, Marianne?" That was the question Marianne had been trying to evade even mentally, for weeks. No one had asked her.

"I haven't decided yet, Mother," she lied halfway. It was impossible to decide when offers were as yet purely a matter of hope! And fellows were peculiar when it came to matters like asking a girl to the year's most important dance!

She had given the matter enough thought to be convinced that she would finally wind up by accepting Willie Harris, who lived down the street. His folks didn't have any money either, and the daughter of a widowed mother who had small means would just about match Willie in the social scale of the class!

A week before the dance, Marianne found herself perplexed and wondering. As yet, no one had ventured to ask her for a date. Even Willie, according to the rumors which currently ran thick around the school, had invited a strange girl. That was the advantage fellows had—they didn't have to wait for an invitation.

Then the miraculous, the totally unbelievable happened. Johnny Powers, who had been linked almost automatically with Alice Kendall, the class's admitted belle, since he came back to school after a year on the continent, intercepted her on the school stairs.

It was a breathless moment. She had never been so close to the rich, good-looking young man before, much less been addressed pointedly by him.

"Will you allow me to take you to the prom?" he opened simply. "It would be a great pleasure if you would." Marianne doubted her ears then suspicion dawned that it was a joke. But he was direct, and the look in his eyes was honest and above subterfuge.

"Yes" was all that Marianne could manage to get out before she moved rapidly away down the stairs. She didn't trust herself to speak any more just then. Johnny Kendall might understand, though, because he was a lot older than the other senior fellows because of having missed school while traveling. And

It Was A Breathless Moment

Johnny turned out to be all that Marianne had dreamed that he could be. Besides him the other fellows in the class seemed callow and inexperienced. Johnny was comfortably at ease in every situation, she felt. He knew his way around!

They were on their way home before Marianne began to come out of her trance. How could she possibly tell him where she lived, have him take her to the old house on the other side, the poorest side, of town? The expensive roadster in which they rode through the moonlight probably cost more than her mother's house, with the property thrown in!

A thousand wild schemes pressed against her consciousness, clamoring for attention.

Wife Got FAT—
No Longer Attractive LOST HUSBAND'S LOVE

The above headlines appeared in a New York newspaper in connection with a divorce trial that had attracted wide attention. "She was a beautiful woman," one witness testified, "but she got fat and is not attractive any more."

Thousands of women are getting fat and losing their appeal just because they do not know what to do. If you are fat, how would you like to lose some of it and at the same time gain in physical charm and attractiveness—more energy—greater activity?

Why not do what thousands of women have done to get rid of pounds of unwanted fat? Take a teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts (a famous English formula) in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast and keep it up for thirty days. Cut out pastries and fatty meats and go light on white bread, potatoes, butter and cream. Then weigh yourself and see how many pounds you have lost.

A bottle of Kruschen Salts will last you for 4 weeks and costs but little. Ask Cumberland Drug Co. or any druggist for a bottle of Kruschen, plain or new effervescent—sparkling—pleasant—and start today to lose fat. Satisfaction guaranteed or money back.

ing to help her out of her dilemma. She stole a sideways glance at Johnny. A satisfied smile broke above the boyish but firm jut of his jaw.

"I won't even ask you the way home," he startled her, "because I know it very well. I've been trailing you for weeks, Marianne, trying to get courage enough to approach you about this dance. You seem to be the only real person in the class, somehow. All the others just haven't taken time to grow up and drop their childish jealousies and prejudices in the ashcan where they belong!"

Marianne felt that a reply was necessary, but it would take time to adjust her thoughts to this new angle. "I'm glad," she told him in a small voice. He laughed contentedly.

"I'm glad my confession is over!" he admitted. "And seeing that you don't mind about my undercover work, I guess that perhaps a lot of things are just starting for you and me!"

Marianne laughed herself then and relaxed. "I think you guess right!" she agreed.

Bond Rally Plays Out

NEW YORK, May 15 (AP)—Railroad bonds got a fairly firm foothold on the upside early in today's market but eventually gave up most if not all of the advantage and closed irregularly lower along with the rest of the corporate list.

U. S. Governments acted completely indifferent to the Washington story about Secretary Morgenthau coming into the bond market next week with a program involving more than a billion dollars "unless something unexpected happens in financial markets."

Of the amount mentioned $834-

452,000 would be for refunding of the 3 1/2% maturing in August and $500,000,000 "new money" would be added to dwindling Treasury cash. Treasury issues showed only negligible changes either way on the "big board" and over the counter.

Parents Warned
To Be Careful in Punishing Child

Too Often Is an Evil-When in Doubt, Do Nothing,
Dr. Myers Says

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Let me offer some warnings against bad punishment in children.

Let the parents agree upon the very few things the tot must never do without his receiving immediate pain, and limit spanking to these few situations, each always aiming to act as the other would.

When in doubt do nothing.

Aim to abandon corporal punishment by the time the child is four or five and to employ very little of it even up to then. Much punishment means bad punishment. Limit its use to application of spanking.

As soon as the child will stay where put, abandon spanking. Instead assign him to sit in a certain place doing nothing, where you can see him, for so many minutes, say fifteen or twenty; never just "until I tell you to get down." This is effective up to the age of ten or twelve. Use denial of definite privileges later.

In selecting forbidden acts to be punished, remember that only those should be chosen in which the pain always can be immediate and without exception. This obviously rules out such matters as thumb-sucking, nail-biting and the like.

Avoid choosing situations in which the pain can be connected in the child's mind with other very desirable acts and habits, such as those in relation to eating and elimination. Spank the child for a bad act as his meal and it may make his eating less attractive.

Be Careful with Punishments

Remember that pain makes unpleasant the act it is connected with. Use pain, therefore, for what the child must never do, not to get him to do what you want him to do. There may be some desirable exceptions at the age of six or older, not many. Use pain to keep the tot from running into the street, playing in the fire, throwing stones
at a car, but not to get him to say
"please" and "thank you," go to bed or eat his food.

Try not to command the young child, rarely the older one, to do anything. Use requests instead. If he chooses against you, hold him to his choice. Let him learn it is a privilege to accede to your request.

Except for the tot under two or three, don't punish on the first offense. Explain the seriousness of the offense and tell what the penalty will be if it is repeated. Then keep your word.

Let the child be warned just once,
but let there be no cumulative punishment. Punish only for a definite act.

Once the child is punished for an act, close the issue forever. Never bring it up again.

Avoid long drawn-out punishments. It's the certainty of the punishment rather than its duration and intensity which is most effective. No parent who can't control himself or herself it to punish a child.

I have a chapter on punishment in my book "The Modern Parents," which you should be able to find in your public library. If you will write me at 235 East Forty-fifth street, N. Y. City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope, I will send you a list of books and pamphlets which will help you learn how to guide your child without much punishment and with more insight and understanding.

Frostburg State Teachers Commencement To Be Held June 9

Mrs. Ruth Sowers Hangs Self from Pipe in Basement

Second Suicide in Lonaconing in Past Four Days; Was Former Teacher

LONACONING, May 15 — At an early hour this morning, Mrs. Ruth Sowers, 39, wife of Lowell Sowers, and mother of two children, hanged herself in the basement of the family home, East Main street.

This is the second such incident occurring here in the past four days, and similar in some respects. The woman was also hanging from a water pipe, suspended by a sash cord. It is thought she had used one of the children's toys to stand on, which was nearby.

According to her husband she had been suffering with a nervous condition, which he first noticed last Tuesday. She suffered a nervous breakdown last year. The couple last night attended the Orange and Black honor banquet, at the Central high school, where Sowers is vice-principal and instructor in chemistry. Upon arriving home, it is understood they retired about 3 a. m., after making plans for a proposed visit to Gettysburg, this morning. When Sowers was awakened at 5 a. m. this morning by the alarm set the previous night, he discovered his wife missing from bed. He started a search and found her body in the basement.

Dr. Henry M. Hodges pronounced her dead, and Deputy County medical examiner, Dr. Linne H. Corson, gave a verdict of suicide by strangulation.

The deceased woman was the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. George G. Ketter, Gettysburg. The Rev. Mr. Ketter, retired from the ministry in 1932 and died several years ago. Mrs. Ketter still resides in Gettysburg. She was a graduate of the Allegheny high school, Allegheny, N. Y., and the Hartwick Seminary, New York; she was graduated from the Gettysburg college, Gettysburg, Pa., in 1924, and then taught school at the Clifton Park junior high school, Baltimore, for five years.

She came here in 1928, with her husband who had accepted a position in the local high school. The past thirteen years she had been prominent in civic enterprises and interested in the welfare of the young people of this and nearby communities.

It was through her efforts that the local unit of the Girl Scouts of America was formed. She was also interested in the NYA for placing youths in jobs, such as in the Lonaconing Community Library, which she started and directed with no compensation. She was a member of the Book club and an officer. Besides these activities she taught Sunday school at the St. Paul's Lutheran church, Frostburg, of which she was a member. While at the Gettysburg college she was a member of the Beta Lambda sorority. She was also president of the Lonaconing Garden Club.

Besides her husband and mother, two children, Lowell, Jr., and Susan, one sister, Mrs. George Dean Hagerstrom, and one brother, Warren Ketter, Benton, Pa., survive.

Rep. Sparkman Speaks at Oakland Junior Chamber Charter Dinner

OAKLAND, Md., May 15 — Addressed by Rep. John J. Sparkman, of Huntsville, Ala., who is a member of the Military Affairs committee, and Thomas Baldrige, of Winchester, Va., national vice-president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, who is also director of the Apple Blossom Festival, were highlights in the charter presentation dinner of the local Jaycees last night.

The charter presentation itself, made by Baldrige, was one of great moment for the forty-two members who affiliated with the organization and who will have their names inscribed as charter members of the group that is planning to devote its time to civic improvement in Oakland.

The affair was attended by 125 or more, with heads of various other organizations in town present as guests of the Jaycees.

Charles L. Briner, Jr., president, received a special lapel pin from the National organization, as first leader of the local group. Briner read a number of telegrams from the National and State organizations and also one from the local board of education offering its best wishes for the club's success and for its opportunities "to carry on the spirit of America during the coming years."

Fred Heisel, former president of the Cumberland club, introduced Baldrige who traced the extension of the organization from its formation in St. Louis to the point where it was now in every state in the union, several territories and parts of the British Empire. He also pointed out many projects they are accomplishing in communities similar to Oakland.

Sparkman dwelled on the seriousness of the defense program and the importance of a stepped up wartime preparation to aid Britain to save it from totalitarian governments and in order to protect our own nation.

Present at the meeting also as a guest was A. Charles Stewart, Republican candidate for Congress. His opponent, Mrs. Katherine Byron, was also invited but was unable to attend. Mayor L. M. Praley of Oakland extended his welcome to the group and promised the cooperation of the city officials in any project undertaken by the Jaycees.

are conducting a door-to-door campaign with the slogan, "Let's elect an experienced public administrator!" A corps of fifty women has been organized to conduct a telephone campaign. Through five teams of ten women each, to be stationed in each of the larger voting areas. Never in recent years have the Republican women of this county organized so intensively for a congressional campaign.

Mrs. Robert A. Taft, wife of the Ohio senator, was keynote speaker before the women's organization meeting last Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Galen L. Taft on Western avenue.

"The people of this alert and progressive district want as their representative in Congress someone who is, and has been, in active daily contact with the problems of the community during recent years," Mrs. Taft told the meeting of about 100 women leaders.

Two "Stewart for Congress" clubs have been launched among Montgomery County Democrats, one in Bethesda, the other in Silver Spring. A special caravan of automobiles has been organized by Stewart supporters in the Democratic ranks to take voters to the polls for the special election Tuesday, May 27.

Met 2,000 People

Stewart is described by newspaper correspondents as a most effective grass-roots campaigner. In his four-day tour of Montgomery county he met or spoke before no less than 3,000 people. His appeal is informal, homesy, sincere and convincing.

"As I understand our constitutional system," he said repeatedly, "the duty of a congressman is to represent the people of his district, not to vote selfishly according to his own limited lights. This is my understanding of real representative government, wherein the voters are faithfully represented by their duly elected congressmen."

The issues before this nation today are extremely complex. Congressional duties require earnest study and hard work. I should expect to be a full-time congressman, maintaining constant and intimate contact with the entire Sixth district.

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE
THE COTTAGE was in darkness when Natalie reached it, and she told herself she was a fool to have her heart drop like that, just because Brooks wasn't sitting here waiting for her.

She went in, switching on the lights, assuring herself that he really was gone. In the bedroom the closet door was partly ajar and there were unmistakable evidences that Brooks had changed clothes. The tropical whites that all men here wore when they went to the mainland, were gone. Poor darling! He had been upset by that scene with the newspaper men. Then she remembered the scene on the beach when Brooks had put his arms about June and kissed her, and she set her teeth hard.

She stood very still there in the pretty, colorful room, while her memory went back to the day when she and Brooks had talked about love. Brooks had been amused and cynical, had denied any belief in such a thing. "Well—maybe he didn't mean it any more than you did," she told herself shakily. "You lied, too—remember? You told him you didn't believe in love either. Maybe he was lying, too— you hope!"

She tried to manage a laugh, but it wasn't very successful. And then suddenly, her eyes brightened, she went to the closet, rummaged among the delicate, cobwebby garments hanging there, and selected a negligee that was a froth of peach-colored chiffon and fragile creamy lace; the sort of garment any girl would dream of having in her trousseau. In the bathroom, she ran a hot tub, poured bath salts lavishly into the steaming water, and laughed at herself for the rising excitement that went through her.

Fresh from her tub, she donned the satin nightdress that matched the negligee. She had never been more lovely in her life, and she knew it. She went back into the living room, turned out all the lamps but one, and sat down in a cushioned wicker chair to wait.

Her senses were very keen; she was almost sharply conscious of the beating of the surf on the beach; the sound of night creatures from the jungle behind the line of cottages. She heard the sound of a footstep on the shell path outside, and her heart lifted. A man's footstep on the veranda, and then at the door. Her knees were wet tissue paper—she couldn't stand up. She could only sit there in her wicker chair, her heart hammering like mad, and wait.

The door opened—and her heart fell. For the man who stood there was not Brooks—but Donald Heath.

His face was taut and white behind his sun-tan. His eyes were bitter, but when he spoke his voice was casual, almost matter-of-fact, as he said, "I thought you should know that they've gone away together."

Natalie only stared at him wide-eyed, silent.

"Your husband," he explained, answering the question he saw in her eyes. "And my wife. I saw them on the mainland just now. I took the newspaper guys across and saw them on the train to be sure they'd get off the island. And on my way back to the pier, I saw your husband and my wife getting into a taxi—all dressed up plumb regardless, both of them."

Natalie's heart lay like a stone in her breast. For a long moment she could not speak, but at last she forced her stiff lips to say heavily, "Then you know, too."

"I know what?" he demanded.

"That they're in love with each other," said Natalie steadily.

Donald made a little sound half an oath, half an explosive, mirthless laugh. "Oh, for Pete's sake—" he began, annoyed.

"I saw them on the beach this afternoon," said Natalie, her eyes wide and sick, as though she had been dealt a blow whose pain was almost beyond endurance. "She was crying. Brooks had her in his arms, trying to comfort her—and he—kissed her—"

"I don't care what that meant, and I don't care what you know that June loves ME. Nobody in the world could possibly convince me of anything else."

"You're that sure she loves you—and yet you're breaking up your marriage and sending her to Hollywood alone?"

Donald's jaw set hard and he said grimly, "I have no right to chain her down to ordinary married life—the kind I can give her."

She's a genius—and genius belongs to the world, not to just one broken-down hack of a newspaper guy—"

"You fool!" Natalie's voice cut like a whiplash across his words. "You poor, blind fool! Oh, you can't possibly mean that. You're just excusing yourself. You're letting her go because you don't love her—"

"Don't!" Donald's voice rode high above hers, beating hers to silence. "If I don't love her, why is it like tearing the very heart out of my body to let her go?"

He seemed to hear his own voice and it silenced him for a moment; then he managed a faint grin and made a little gesture with a hand that was not too steady. "Sorry to go melodramatic on you," he apologized. "I don't seem to be at my best tonight, somehow—"

"That's because you love her, and you're too stubborn to admit it, and because of some crazy thing that men call pride and use to torture the women who are fools enough to love them," said Natalie savagely. "If what you're doing to June—yes, and what Brooks is doing to me—is the mark of what you call self-respect, then I'd like to meet a man who didn't have any. And now—will you please get out of here? I've had just about as much of your noble behavior as I can take for one night."

Donald was white and his face was stiff with rage and surprise. For a moment he stood there, hesitant, as though about to say something more. And then he set his jaw hard, turned, and stalked out.

Natalie stood very still for a moment, the rapid rising and falling of her breast stirring the soft chiffon and satin of her garments. Then, her mouth a set white line, she turned off the last light and went into the bedroom. Deliberately, she closed and locked the door; and her mouth curled in a little sneer of self-scorn. She had never had to close the door against Brooks in their brief, painful honeymoon, for Brooks had never so much as come near that door. They were no more really man and wife than they had been when they had stood before the minister that day which now seemed so many years ago.

directed the picture and the cast supporting the stars features Charles Winninger, Mary Gordon and Ted Prouty.
 Among the many sets built for "Pot O' Gold," the largest was the country club set, representing the veranda, lawn and arbors of a mythical Eastchester Country Club. After two weeks of work by scores of carpenters, electricians, painters, sign painters and assorted technicians, this set occupied the area of a square city block.
 The most spectacular scene photographed on this lavish set included sixteen rumba dancing couples, a twelve-piece rumba band, Horace Heidt's thirty-piece band, and 100 dress extras seated at tables under the club's arbors sipping drinks and having a gay time. Among the special hit tunes sung and danced to in "Pot O' Gold" are "When Johnny Toots His Horn," "Katie, Fork and Spoon," "Peter, the Piper," "Broadway Caballero" and "Do You Believe in Fairy Tales?"
 The story of "Pot O' Gold" concerns an eccentric millionaire whose food products are poorly advertised, his impecunious nephew and an equally impecunious band of musicians. The millionaire is played by Charles Winninger, while Stewart appears as the nephew. Miss Goddard meets Stewart when he gets mixed up with the band and its troubles. Their romance causes a merry mix-up for all concerned and provides a raft of fun and melody.

'Wagons Roll at Night'
Will Open at Liberty
 A four star cast heads the new Warner Brothers picture, "The Wagons Roll at Night," which has been booked by the Liberty theater to open there tomorrow. The headliners are Humphrey Bogart, Joan Leslie, Eddie Albert and Sylvia Sydney and the picture is a powerfully dramatic story of nomads of the road, living, loving and hating by a code of their own.
 Bogart follows up his recent success in "High Sierra," with the role of a hard and cynical owner of a carnival company, which he rules with a rod of iron. He has, however, like most hard guys, a soft spot. He is reserved exclusively for his kid sister, played by Joan Leslie for whom he maintains a country home. One jump ahead of the sheriff, as usual, the carnival rolls into Hentyville—and trouble. The lion tamer gets drunk and lets one of the lions escape. The beast roams into a local grocery store, and the grocery clerk, Eddie Albert, corners him with a pitchfork. Even hand-bled Bogart is impressed by this and in order to jack up box-office receipts, he invites Albert to make guest appearances with the carnival that week. Albert moves on with the show. Eventually the drunken lion tamer gets fired, and Albert gets the job. The pseudo gypsy fortune teller, played by Sylvia Sydney, teaches him the ropes of carnival life.

Modern Romantic Story Begins with Marriage
 Although most pictures end with an engagement and a suggestion of future bliss in wedlock, "Vivacious Lady," which opens today at the Strand, starring Ginger Rogers and James Stewart, begins with a marriage and swiftly builds up through the complications so typical of modern newliweds.
 In this case, Ginger and Stewart, as the bride and groom, come from vastly different social strata. The difference is so marked, in fact, that Stewart, as a studious botany instructor at a small college, hesitates at breaking to his puritanical family the news that he has married a night-club entertainer after knowing her scarcely six hours.
 From this situation stem the unique ramifications of the plot, which turn into two triangles—that of the newlyweds and the bridegroom's stern family, and of the young couple and the groom's playboy cousin, who has more than a platonic interest in the bride.
 Cary Grant again appears in the list of men who have played opposite Katharine Hepburn, a distinguished company that includes Adolphe Menjou, Franchot Tone, Herbert Marshall, Fredric March, Brian Aherne, Fred MacMurray, Charles Boyer, John Bar, Ralph Bellamy, Paul Lukas, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Colin Clive and John Barrymore. (This is a formidable array of talent and few actresses can boast of having appeared with as many male stars.)
 Before the two are finally united, they have chased a leopard over much of the Connecticut countryside, landed in jail, and met with many other hilarious adventures.

Joe E. Brown Heads Garden Twin Bill
 Followers of the "Hopalong" Cassidy outdoor action romances who have thrilled to some of the spills taken by riders who appear in three pictures from time to time may think that Producer Harry Sherman is pretty tough on horses in his quest for realism. But taint so, those spills are experts who have trained their horses to fall realistically and knowing that there is sugar and mashed oats waiting for them if they do it well, the horses are pretty eager to please.
 Take "In Old Colorado," the "Hopalong" saga, which opens today at the Garden theater for instance. In some of the sequences there are a couple of spills which look like sure broken limbs, cracked ribs and sundry other abrasions, contusions and lacerations. But there was nary a scratch to show for all of them. Just part of the

Mrs. Byron Great Patriot, Rayburn Says in Speech

Speaker of House Addresses Democratic Rally at Silver Springs

SILVER SPRING, Md., May 15 (AP)—Speaker Rayburn (D-Text) described Mrs. Katharine Byron tonight as a "great patriot," deserving election to the congressional seat held by her husband, the late Rep. William D. Byron (D-Md.).

Rayburn told a Sixth district Democratic rally here that Mrs. Byron "could be nothing but a great patriot and helpful" to the House and to the president in the present crisis.

Mrs. Byron, who is opposing A. Charles Stewart, the Republican candidate, in the forthcoming special district election, spoke briefly at the rally, observing that today was her late husband's forty-sixth birthday.

Other speakers included Attorney General William C. Walsh, Mrs. Ralph A. Wells, president of the Women's Democratic Club of Montgomery county, State Senator Robert Peter (D-Montgomery), Joseph Cantrell, counsel to the county commissioners, Mrs. Jesse Nicholson, organizer of the Katharine Byron Club in Chevy Chase, and Mrs. E. A. Merritt, president of the Chevy Chase women's Democratic club.

Flying Officer Saved In Mid-Air When His Propeller Tangles

SAN DIEGO, Calif., May 15 (AP)—A mid-air rescue, affected by pilots flying so precisely the propeller of one cut the shrouds of a fouled parachute trailing from another, saved a marine corps lieutenant who for thirty minutes today dangled head-first in space.

First the navy rescue plane was maneuvered into position to permit twenty-three-year-old Lieut. Walter S. Osipoff to be pulled partly into the cockpit of the hell-diver bomber.

Then Lieut. W. W. Lowrey, 34, of Dallas, inched his craft upward to within two feet of the larger marine transport while the whirling propeller, slashed to shrouds and freed Osipoff. Disaster nearly overtook the venture a moment later as the two planes came so close the propeller knocked a piece of the metal from the transport.

Preview of Army Life at West Point

ABERDEEN, Md., May 15 (AP)—Stripped of academy finery, the 1941 class of West Point cadets tramped around the army's staff proving ground today as Uncle Sam put on a preview of life to come for some 400 men who will receive commissions next month.

The rattle of machine guns, sharp bark of howitzers and the crash of heavy artillery provided a background for the cadets making an inspection tour of latest military equipment manufactured in this country modern weapons were displayed with those of World War vintage to show the West Pointers the progress made.

An elaborate display of night fighting, with tracer bullets from small arms streaking through the dark while airplanes roared overhead dropping night flares climaxed the first day program.

Tomorrow the cadets will witness demonstrations of mechanized weapons, including all types of tanks.

press not to print was seen or known by thousands, making secrecy a joke. As the present "voluntary censorship" is a carbon copy of the old, the joke may be expected to persist.

He said the prohibitions in news reporting asked by Secretary of Navy Knox "are virtually the same prohibitions that we laid down in 1917, and every whit as unnecessary."

Ship Movements Known

"The arrival and departure of ships and planes are about as secret as the trips of a sightseeing bus. Until war comes to these shores or expeditionary forces are sent abroad, the movement of troops possess little significance, for the location of training camps is a matter of common knowledge."

"This holds good for new ships, new planes and navy construction projects ashore, for shipyards and aviation factories are not of a size to be hidden, nor of a nature to be located in some remote mountain fastness. In addition to thousands of workmen, other thousands see these yards and factories every day and have a fairly good idea of what is going on in them."

Guard French Ship

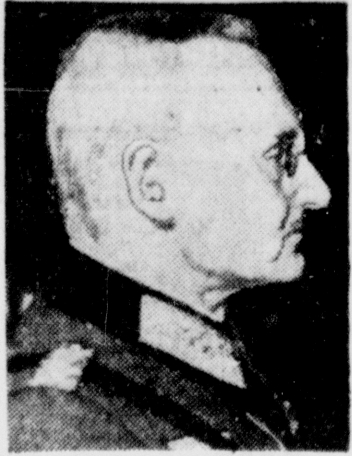

SAN FRANCISCO, May 15 (AP)—The coast guard said that a guard was placed aboard the French freighter Alencon today as a precaution to prevent any damage being done the ship.

The Alencon, formerly the Brookings, has been tied up here for months.

was only an expression of personal opinion.

American Suspicious

A highly-placed American observer, who in the circumstances preferred to remain anonymous, suggested that Hess, whether willingly or not, was the herald of a great threat to the British Isles.

"I'm suspicious of the whole thing," he said, then criticizing the British for having "spread too full a glow" which might help to "lull" people into a letup and soften them for new blows by Germany."

Churchill Delays Statement

Prime Minister Churchill postponed—until such times as it may be in "the public interest"—a scheduled extensive statement on the affair before parliament.

The highly authoritative British press association earlier had substantially agreed with the German story that Hess had set a bee-line for the Scottish castle of the thirty-eight-year-old Duke of Hamilton in the notion that the duke might somehow help him bring about an end of the war, but today eminent quarters declined to confirm the association's account.

To the House Churchill explained the forty-eight-hour delay in announcing Hess' arrival in Britain by saying that his identity had to be established beyond question and pointing out that it was, after all, a rather incredible business.

There was some indication of a divergence of opinion as to how Hess should be treated. A hint of this was dropped by Herbert Morrison, the minister of Home Security, who said at a luncheon:

Will Be 'Looked After'

"There is a bit of demarcation dispute going on as to whose prisoner he is. I have ambitions myself but other people have, too, and I cannot do better than say he will be looked after."

The British radio, pursuing its policy of harrassing the Germans to the limit, broadcast a transcription of Adolf Hitler's own choice—the speech made on Sept. 1, 1939, by the fuhrer in designating Hess as his political heir but once removed and bespeaking for him the full "loyalty, fidelity and duty" of the German people.

Norwegian circles here declared that even in occupied Norway Hess' flight, and the consequent reports of dissension in high Nazi circles, had caused a sensation. At the same time they asserted that a long-standing quarrel between the Nazi politicians and Nazi military leadership in Norway had now reached such a point as to suggest the eventual liberation of that country.

Hagerstown Workers Get Pay Increase

HAGERSTOWN, Md., May 15 (AP)—The mayor and council today approved a recommendation by the Board of Street Commissioners to increase wages in the production and distribution departments of the municipal light plant.

The increases, averaging about ten per cent through the two departments, will total $8,000 yearly. They were recommended by the commissioners to compensate for increasing wages in private industry.

Germany Pleased With Vichy Move

BERLIN, May 15 (AP)—The Wilhelmstrasse exhibited optimism today over German-French relations as the German press took the view that the Vichy cabinet had dealt a blow to United States intervention.

Although details of yesterday's cabinet council meeting in Vichy were not disclosed, authorized sources emphasized that by unanimous decision of the cabinet, France feels herself a part of Europe and hence is opposed to being a sphere of influence for any other continent.

These sources suggested that it has been made clear to American Ambassador William D. Leahy that France does not wish to be a colony of another continent and that neither Europe nor America has the right to impose on the other.

"England and Roosevelt cannot deceive Britain and Darlan any longer," declared the Berliner Boersen Zeitung.

The Hamburger Fremdenblatt said Admiral Leahy was among those who "tried to keep France from her natural functions as a part of the European continent" and said that Paris resistance of his predecessor, Ambassador William C. Bullitt, was a concentration point for all the powers of Europe to force a war.

3 German Ships Fired by British

LONDON, May 15 (AP)—Three German supply ships were left burning off the Pristan Islands today after British bombers attacked an escorted convoy, the air ministry announced tonight.

The three victims of the RAF marksmen were estimated to total 11,000 tons.

Nazi fighting planes swarmed out to defend the convoy, the air ministry said, and in the melee that followed each side lost a plane.

British fighter squadrons, restless as bad weather limited Germany's bombers to sporadic attacks on England, carried out several offensive sweeps over the channel and northern France.

Tonight watchers on the English coast could see the flashes of gunfire near Calais, France, shortly after RAF planes flew in that direction, apparently bound on another of their regular forays against the German-held coast.

Midshipmen Give Up $143 Jobs To Take $53

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 15 (AP)—From reserve midshipman-to-en-sign-to-second class seaman all in four hours was the record hung today by eighteen members of the naval reserve school's graduating class.

Before noon they were reserve midshipmen drawing $65 a month. And just after noon they were commissioned naval ensigns, rating $143 a month. But they forsook rank, pay and a leave to "start all over again"—as second class seamen at $53 a month.

Why? Because they're air-minded. They resigned their ensign commissions to take flight training courses at Anacostia and at Miami.

Rashid Ali just such aid when the latter seized power early in April.

Today Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons in London:

"Detailed information at the disposal of his majesty's government shows that French authorities in Syria are allowing German aircraft to use Syrian airdromes as staging posts for flights to Iraq."

"His majesty's government has, in consequence, given full authority for action against these German aircraft on Syrian airdromes."

Bitterly, Eden inveighed against the French government, which only yesterday approved new measures of collaboration agreed upon at Berchtesgaden by Hitler and Vice-Premier Admiral Darlan.

"The French government cannot escape responsibility for this situation," Eden said. "Their action under German orders in permitting these flights is a clear breach of the armistice terms and is inconsistent with the undertakings given by the French government."

Eden, however, avoided a reply to the LaBorde Emanuel Shinnwell question as to whether the situation indicated that "we can no longer place any reliance in the French government."

Some sources said the French might grant Syria nominal independence in order to wash Vichy's hands of responsibility for German occupation.

Three Bishops Attend Final Rites for Monsignor Tierney

EMMITSBURG, Md., May 15 (AP)—Three bishops and nine monsignors were present today at the funeral services of the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John J. Tierney, dean emeritus of Mount St. Mary's college.

The 88-year-old Monsignor, often praised as a "maker of bishops," died Monday following a long illness.

The Most Rev. William J. Haley, D.D., Bishop of Scranton, Pa., one of the nine former students of Monsignor Tierney who became bishops, eulogized his former teacher as an exact scholar who believed education to be "the formation of character rather than the mere accumulation of facts."

Also present were the Most Rev. M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of Baltimore, and the most Rev. George L. Leech, bishop of Hagerstown, along with a large number of priests, the Mount St. Mary's student body and the senior class of nearby St. Joseph's college.

Two German Planes Bagged by British

LONDON, Friday, May 16 (AP)—Two German planes were reported shot down by British night fighters early today in a dogfight five miles high over the southeast coast area.

Captain James Gives FDR's Best Wishes To King of Greece

CANEA, CRETE, May 15 (AP)—Captain James Roosevelt, received by King George II of Greece two days ago, delivered a letter from President Roosevelt which declared, "I do wish you could get more help from us and more quickly."

The letter dated April 12—the Germans on that day were breaking through Bitoli gap and driving into western Greece—said:

"Your majesty, may I introduce my eldest son, James Roosevelt. He is captain of the U. S. Marines Corps and leave as an observer in Greece and the Near East."

"For the magnificent fight for freedom you people of Greece are putting up you have all our praise, all our prayers."

"I do wish you could get more help from us and more quickly! All I can say is I am using every effort and—the best of luck to you and yours."

"Faithfully Yours, FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT."

Two Indicted for Hagerstown Holdups

HAGERSTOWN, Md., May 15 (AP)—Sheriff Joseph D. Baker said today four grand jury indictments in connection with an attempted hold-up been returned against Elmer C. Haldeman and Archie Edwards.

The two men are being held in connection with an attempted hold-up of the Clear Spring National Bank near here. Haldeman, alias George Vincent, is in jail here and Edwards is in the Frederick county jail.

Edwards confessed to the attempt on the bank, Baker said, and implicated Haldeman. Also involved in the charge, he said, were robberies at two Hagerstown grocery stores and the Maugansville elevator.

The sheriff said two of the indictments charge robbery with deadly weapons, one attempted robbery with deadly weapons, and one burglary with explosives.

Wants Higher Taxes To Prevent Inflation

BALTIMORE, May 15 (AP)—Paul Endicott, Pomona, Calif., president of the United States Savings and Loan League, today told 700 southeastern group representatives from ten states that taxation was the "only completely non-inflationary way to pay our national defense costs."

Endicott's address opened the eleventh annual conference of the sectional group. Speaking on the "management responsibilities in 1941," the national president termed present conditions a "challenge to management in all lines of business."

"Less money for saving means a restricted flow of funds into our associations, especially when coupled with the defense bond sales program," Endicott said, but declared the duty of the savings men was to cooperate in rather than oppose increasing taxation.

Ship Seizure

offered the amendment to bar the transfer of vessels from one belligerent to another, argued that if any of the Axis ships were given to England, the transfer would constitute a "needless, provocative act of war" by this country.

He noted that responsible administration supporters had said the Axis shipping would be used in American waters only, and asked why, if that was the case, there was any opposition to his amendment.

George Backs Move

Chairman George D. Ga of the Foreign Relations committee made a brief address arguing that the existence of a "national emergency" in which the "country faces a grave danger" was sufficient to justify the ship seizures.

The vote of 43 to 38 gave the group of senators opposing the administration's foreign policy one of its closest approaches to a victory. Of the twenty-five Republicans who voted, twenty-two supported the Vandenberg amendment.

While the struggle over the ship seizure measure was going on in the senate chamber, the question of conveying war materials to Britain continued to arouse discussion.

Senator Lee D. Okla. urged that convoys and other measures be taken to prevent "total war" from spreading to this side of the Atlantic.

Would Seize Dakar

The other steps he advocated were: seizure of Dakar, on the west coast of Africa, to prevent Germany and Italy from using it as a "jumping off place" for an attack on the Western Hemisphere; a "joint coordinated organization" in the United States to offset Axis propaganda; and a 24-hour, seven-day week in defense industries.

Senator Tobey (R-NH) issued a formal statement saying that a "tremendous and increasing volume" of White House mail was providing a "definite check on the president" against any move to institute a system of convoys. This was indicated, he said, by the abrupt cancellation of a recent speech scheduled by Mr. Roosevelt.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, replied that the speech was cancelled solely because the president's physician did not think the executive was "up to the task of making a speech" at the time.

Senator Pepper (D-Fla) suggested that the convoy problem could be obviated by stationing a chain of aircraft carrying vessels across the ocean at hundred-mile intervals, to patrol the sea lanes for German submarines.

Cure, Not Convict, Young Offender Is Plan Tried by Thomas E. Dewey

Law Enforcement Officials, Youth Leaders Interested in Development of District Attorney's Idea

By WILLIAM A. BAKER
Central Press Correspondent

NEW YORK, May 15.—Operation of a plan devised by Thomas E. Dewey to keep youthful first offenders from contact with hardened criminals and to spare them the disgrace of a felony conviction is beginning to interest officers and youth leaders in various communities throughout the United States.

It is exactly 10 years since Dewey, at 29, began the phenomenal career during which he has sent top racketeers and political overlords to prison. He has served successively as chief assistant United States attorney, United States attorney, special prosecutor and district attorney of New York county (Manhattan).

"We have had no repeaters, so far," Dewey commented on the system he introduced four months ago, by agreement with the judges of general sessions, under which offenders may be placed on probation as wayward minors and indictments against them dismissed. Their names are not disclosed and police records of their offenses are destroyed.

"For youths between the ages of 16 and 18, inclusive, who are without criminal records and who are not charged with crimes of violence, the probation department will, with the consent of counsel for the defendant, make a probation investigation before any trial is had," Dewey explained. "The defendant will also attend the psychiatric clinic before trial, instead of after conviction."

A Tragedy

"One of the greatest tragedies of this city," Dewey observed, "is that the gangster murders are usually committed by comparative youngsters. A heartbreaking percentage of all the crimes of violence are by boys of 16 to 21. With no home influence, they get ensnared in the neighborhood gang spirit through bravado and respect for the neighborhood gang hoodlum."

At first they are delegated for lesser crimes of organized violence, usually done under orders of young men who are somewhat older. Then the man higher up gives them a hundred dollars and says, "I want you to do a job."

In the last three years that I have held office as district attorney of New York county we have had some 60,000 criminal cases carried to a conclusion and, of course, many cases have been investigated and presented to the grand jury which have not resulted in prosecution.

"The shocking thing about the condition of the administration of justice in this county is that of these 60,000 cases about one-fourth represent boys between 16 and 20 years of age."

A High Percentage

"In 1939, in the entire state of New York, there were 11,924 convictions for major offenses—primarily felonies. Of that number there were 2,322 between the ages of 16 and 21. That is something like 27 or 28 per cent of all major convictions in the state. In 1939, in New York county, 25.4 per cent of all felonies were committed by boys between 15 and 20 years of age."

"In appropriate cases—and they cover a very large percentage of these youngsters—I flatly refuse to accept or convict a boy of 16, 17 or 18 of a felony."

"We have before us a problem which is not wholly criminal. It is not wholly psychiatric. It is not wholly one of probation. It is not one of correction. It is not one of family background, or slums, or playgrounds. It is the sum total of all those things rolled into one enormous human problem. And this problem, in my judgment, cannot be handled by any machinery in existence."

The Problem

"A psychiatrist can get opinions as to whether a boy has become a hardened criminal by the time he has become 16, as happens in big cities, or whether at the age of 19 the boy is a fledgling perfectly capable of complete recovery. But the doctor cannot do that adequately, in my opinion, at any hospital; he must do it while sitting down with a probation officer who has been to this boy's home and neighborhood."

"There must be probation work which can really supervise these boys and watch their home conditions and watch their company and bring them in again quickly before something happens that is worse than the previous offense."

"Some 32 states have put the jurisdiction of the children's court up to 18 years. In the city of New York, certainly, and I assume elsewhere, a large number of boys become by the age of 16 so adjusted mentally that they are not subject to treatment as wayward minors or even as children."

"For instance, in a case only a few weeks ago, a 16-year-old boy came into our office. This was his second trip-up, for a burglary. The first had been for stealing some candy."

"The boy's father came to the office and said, 'I am scared, I have been watching this boy and I think he has to go to jail for at least a year because he has got beyond my control. Next time he is in he is going to have gun and I don't know what he will do with it. His mother and I can't handle him and nothing will stop him, so I want him to go to jail even though he is still 16.'"

"And at the same time," Dewey said, "we get boys of 20 who shouldn't go to jail."

"Let us consider another case. A detective passing a corner saw a youngster loitering at the front of a building. He checked up. Three boys had forced entrance to the cellar of the building and to a grocery store. They were in the act of robbing the grocery, which had in the till $300 receipts from Saturday's business.

Many young criminals are launched on their career by older accomplices.

Agos 8 to 25

"Two boys arrested were 16, another was 19, and the ringleader—on probation as a wayward minor on a larceny charge—was 20 years of age. They were a gang ranging from 25 down to eight years of age."

Finally along came Kathryn Lee, an 18-a-week clerk, brooding over the loss of some money and jewelry. She saw the packages, picked them up, found they contained $5,000 and $2,000, respectively, in $100 bills.

She turned her find over to a policeman.

Persons all over the city, reading about the case in the newspapers, claimed the money as theirs. Each claim was investigated and found false.

Today, Edward S. Dunn, a real estate broker, proved he had lost the money en route from one bank to another.

He gave Miss Lee a $1,000 reward and when they compared notes discovered that fifteen minutes had elapsed between the losing and the finding of the money.

If the rightful owner had not claimed it within six months Miss Lee would have been given the $7,500.

and serious as they entered the camp.

French and George Reeves, chief of the camp division of the National Service Board for religious objectors, were present to aid the camp staff.

Spend over $6,000

The camp, located in a 1,546-acre Maryland state forest, is sponsored and staffed by the American Friends Service Committee, which French said has already spent upwards of $6,000 on the project.

Cost of maintaining the camp is to be paid wherever possible, French said, by the campers and by the religious organizations of which the camp is members.

Although the objectors camps were originally established to care primarily for members of the traditional peace churches—the Friends, Mennonites and Brethren—representatives of 70 denominations have already certified as objectors, French said.

gulation is now in danger of becoming punitive and arbitrary government control," he said.

The convention adopted a resolution urging the Senate to open prompt consideration to a resolution introduced by Sen. Wiley (R-Maine) seeking an investigation of the whole radio structure with a view to the enactment of a new radio law. The FCC was requested to suspend operation of its new ruling pending the inquiry.

Strawberry Crop Is Smallest in 40 Years

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., May 15 (AP)—Faced with reports indicating the smallest strawberry crop in forty years, the local auction block made final preparations to open its second season tomorrow on the old high school grounds.

Farmers near Marion, center of the eastern shore strawberry crop, reported that only recent rains had saved their plants from near-destruction. Despite these rains, they estimated more than two-fifths of their potential crop had been ruined by the long dry spell and the ravages of the "clipper" weevil.

Rough stuff is resorted to by Ginger Rogers and Frances Mercer in RKO Radio's "Vivacious Lady" which co-stars Ginger Rogers and James Stewart. It is a sure enough bottle and a fight to the finish and it is all over a man. Ginger Rogers won the 1940 Academy Award for her part in "The Philadelphia Story." The picture starring Gary Grant and Katherine Hepburn starts today at the Strand.

Indians Win First Game of Boston Series

Bob Feller Quells Dangerous Ninth Inning Uprising

League Leaders Defeat Red Sox by Score of 6 to 4

BOSTON, May 15 (AP) — The Cleveland Indians captured the opening tilt of a three-game series with the Boston Red Sox today, 6-4, but were forced to rush as Bob Feller into action to quell a dangerous ninth inning uprising before they sailed the game away.

Loe Plimley started the ninth by batting for Relief Hurler Mike Ryan and belted a clean single into right field off Relief Pitcher Joe Hering. Don DiMaggio drew a base on balls and that was the signal for Feller's entry.

The Cleveland fireballer forced Stan Spence to pop up, but Ted Williams sent a screaming liner down the first base alley. Hel Tuckey leaped high in the air and snatched the bullet with upflung arm, then whipped the ball to Lou Boudreau at second base for a game-ending nubile killing.

At Miliner, who was credited with the victory, started for the league leaders, left-handed, who received youthful support in being charged with the defeat.

Fort Hill's Sentinels will tangle with the Paw Paw, W. Va., baseball team today on their home field. The Sentinels have already beaten Paw Paw once and have been playing heads up ball in the conference since losing an early season game to Beall.

Reds Hope To End Slump With Koy And Chuck Aleno

Veteran Will Play Left Field; Rookie To Start at Third

CINCINNATI, May 15. (AP)—A big hard-driving Texan came out of the West today and, with a brawny capable rookie, gave the Cincinnati Reds front office its first smile of optimism in weeks that the ailing World Champions will pull out of their worst slump in years.

He's Ernie Koy, veteran outfielder, obtained for $35,000 from St. Louis, and the youngster is Chuck Aleno, recalled from Indianapolis to replace Bill Werber at third. Aleno led the Southern Association in batting last year with a .332 at Birmingham and the Reds' management considers him one of the finest all-around prospects ever put under contract.

Happy To Be a Red
Koy, who despite Franco-German parentage boasts the nickname "Chief," drove here with his wife and baby. "I'm very happy to join your club," he told General Manager Warren Giles.

Part of the deal that sent Joe Medwick to the Dodgers last year, he has wanted to join the Reds for some time, spokesmen said, and, scanning the team's current sixth-place rating, they added, "he's bound to do us good."

For one thing, the twenty-eight-year-old Koy boasts a respectable nine-year batting average of .293 and hit .301 last season; moreover, he likes Crosley Field. With its short (383-foot) center field.

Paris may remember that Johnny Vander Meer fanned him four times straight here April 16, and that he whiffed again, first time up next day but, declared Gabe Paul, Reds' traveling secretary, "when Poy hits, he hits. And he's fast, not only afraid but on the bases despite his 205 pounds."

Reds In Slump

Both he and Aleno were scheduled to play tonight as the Reds met Philadelphia in the season's first nocturnal contest. Koy in left field.

The Reds' batting slump is the worst of recent years, even from days when they were perennial cellar contenders. The team had two men among last year's seven leading hitters, "most valuable" Frank McCormick and Ernie Lombardi, but these two, with Jim Gleason, who batted .313 with the Cubs in 1940, have a combined current batting total of only .348. At one point this year, McCormick, Gleason and Harry Craft went to bat seventy-one times and produced just one hit.

Schumaker Trims Chicago 2 to 1

CHICAGO, May 15. (AP)—Hal Schumacher, breaking through a barrier of tough luck that had plagued him all season, pitched six hit balls for victory today as the New York Giants edged out the Chicago Cubs 2 to 1.

New York was held to eight safeties by Claude Passeau, but bunched three of them for all their runs in the third when Morrie Arnovich opened with a single, stole second, and scored on a double by Johnny Rucker, who in turn raced home on a single to center by Burgess Whitehead.

ST. LOUIS, May 15. (AP)—The St. Louis Browns tonight announced the trading of Vernon Kennedy, pitcher, to the Washington Senators for Catcher Rick Ferrell.

Auto Racer Mays Seeks Three Aces

Californian Will Try for First-No. 1 Pole Position Tomorrow

INDIANAPOLIS, May 15. (AP)—Rex Mays, owner of one of the heaviest accelerator-pushing feet in the automobile racing business but never a winner of an Indianapolis 500, will settle for three aces this year—if he can get them.

The lanky, likeable Glendale, Cal., pilot, who makes racing his full-time work, already holds one ace—the big No. 1 on his car, symbolic of the 1940 American Automobile Association driving championship.

He'll try Saturday for the second ace—the No. 1, of pole position in the starting line-up of the annual Memorial day race at the Indianapolis speedway. Saturday is the first day of qualifications and the fastest qualifier that day will win the coveted No. 1 starting spot—the inside position in the front row.

The third ace—the hardest to get—will be the No. 1 position at the head of the pack in the finish of the 500-mile grind about mid-afternoon May 30.

But the 28-year-old Mays, who has finished only one Indianapolis race out of seven starts, thinks maybe this is his year.

"I may go out and try to lead all the way," he said. "It all depends on the speed at the start."

In the 1940 race Mays was running second, close behind Wilbur Shaw, when rain caused officials to order all drivers to hold their places and Rex never had a chance to challenge Shaw for the lead.

Mays, again driving an eight-cylinder machine entered by Robert M. Bowes, Indianapolis manufacturer, turned four laps (ten miles) the other day at about 130 miles an hour.

Keyser scored three runs in the second, one in the third and another in the fifth, while Ridgeley pegged all its tallies in the sixth. Washbaugh was on the mound and Lindsay behind the plate for Ridgeley, while Keyser had Ravenscroft in the box and Dixon on the receiving end.

Men in Service Must Cast Votes In Home Precincts

No Ballots Will Be Mailed to Absentees, Lawrence A. Hewitt Says

Replying to numerous inquiries regarding the special election Tuesday, May 27, on which date the electorate of the Sixth Maryland District will cast its vote for the House of Representatives, Lawrence A. Hewitt, clerk to the Allegheny County Board of Election Supervisors, yesterday pointed out that only those who come home to vote will be permitted to cast their ballots.

There will be no absentee ballots sent out by the election board to those in military service, Hewitt declared.

Must Vote at Home

Such a procedure goes into effect when a proclamation of war is issued, Hewitt stated, but under present conditions those in the army, navy and other branches of the service must come to vote at their polling places.

Two changes in polling places have been made for the special election, Hewitt announced.

In District No. 32, Frostburg, voters will cast their ballots at the home of Grant street instead of in the Goldworthy residence, Main street. In District No. 5, precinct No. 5, the new polling place will be in the First Christian church, Bedford and Decatur streets, instead of Colony's residence on Bedford street.

Approximately eighty election workers have been named in recent weeks by the election board to fill vacancies, most of which were created by workers being drafted for military service or moving out of Allegheny county.

A total of 450 workers will be employed in the seventy-five precincts and thirty-three districts for the special election. Six workers will be assigned to each district, Hewitt said.

Ballots and boxes will be distributed at points outside Cumberland on Friday, May 23, and at city polling places the following day.

Kiwanis Club Holds an Open Forum On Use of U. S. Ships for Convoys

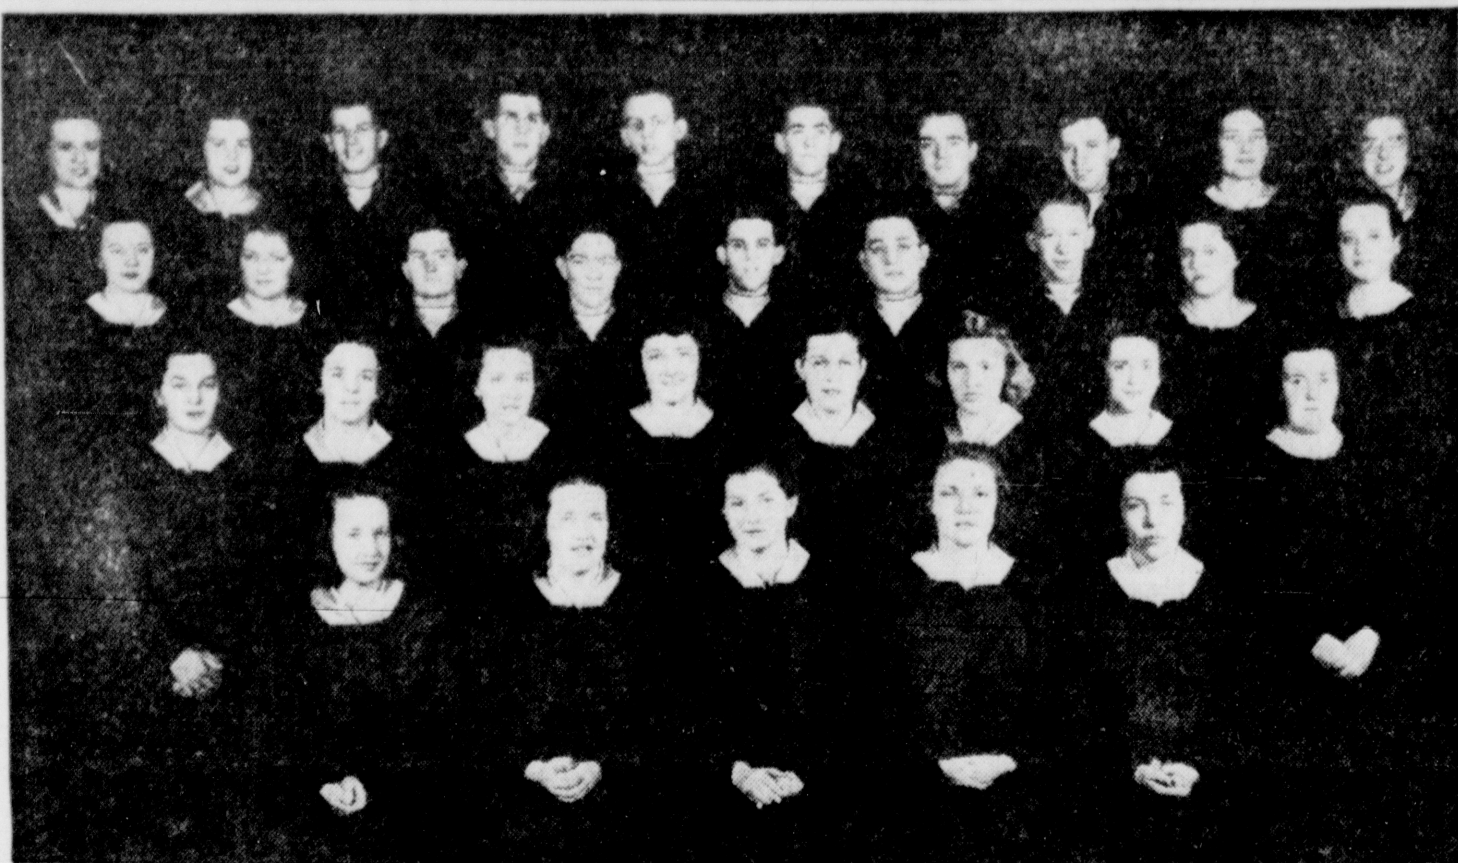

An open forum discussion of the question, "Should the United States use its navy to convoy ships bearing supplies to Britain?" featured the weekly luncheon-meeting of the Kiwanis club yesterday at the Fort Cumberland hotel.

Of the seven members who spoke during the limited time available, only one was strongly opposed to convoying, two were opposed with reservations and four favored it. Speakers on both sides agreed that convoying very likely will mean war.

Chief exponents of the affirmative side were Isaac Hirsch, William M. Somerville and Carl L. Reed.

Their arguments were that although convoys may mean war, war is virtually inevitable anyway and will come whenever Hitler decides it is to his advantage to shoot at us, regardless of what we do. It is better to join Britain in the struggle against Axis domination now than wait and face it alone, they said.

As to the convoy question itself, what use is there, the proponents asked for this country to labor and spend to produce supplies for Britain if they are going to end up on the bottom of the sea? Make sure

Woman Is Shot In Hand; Police Search for Man

Miss Lenore Shupe Is Slightly Injured; Bullet Nips Her Finger

City and county authorities last night continued their search for John Charles Andrews, 32, alias Dennis Arrington, of Allegheny Inn, who they said early yesterday morning brandished a revolver in the apartment of Miss Lenore Shupe, 24, of 222 Glenn street, shot her in the right hand and fled.

Police said they were told that Andrews, formerly of Baltimore and El Paso, Tex., and Miss Shupe were sipping a cup of coffee when the former volunteered to demonstrate his skill with his pistol. Andrews, they reported, unholstered a revolver and proceeded to justify his claims to marksmanship by trying to "hit the ceiling" through a reflection on top of the kitchen table.

Deflected in its upward course, either by poor aim or by some article of kitchenware, the bullet slanted over and nipped Miss Shupe's fingers reposing on the table's edge.

Miss Shupe, a waitress at a local tavern, was taken to Allegheny hospital, where a small chip of bone was removed from her second finger. Her thumb and first finger were also struck by the bullet. She was discharged after receiving treatment.

Andrews, said to be an itinerant magazine salesman, fled before occupants of the Glenn street house arrived in the Shupe apartment, and county authorities were called in on the case.

Officers said Andrews' photograph, description and fingerprints are on file at headquarters in accordance with regulations governing permits for traveling salesmen to solicit business here. He is five feet, eleven inches tall, of slim build, and has a ruddy complexion, they said.

The incident occurred about 1:30 o'clock Thursday morning.

Two Buses Hired For Fort Meade Trip Tomorrow

70 Persons Make Reservations; Legion Donates Silk for Curtains

Due to the demand for reservations on the excursion to Fort George G. Meade for the "Home Week" program Saturday and Sunday, two buses will be chartered for the trip to the camp, it was announced last evening by Mrs. Frank Hinz, chairman of the Soldiers' Service Committee of Cumberland.

Mrs. Hinz said that it was originally planned to charter a single bus for fifty relatives of members of Company G, One Hundred and Fifteenth Infantry, Rifles, but within the last few days the number of persons requesting reservations has increased to seventy, hence the hiring of a second bus so that all can be amply accommodated.

With seventy passengers fixed as the limit, Mrs. Hinz said that thirty-five persons will be placed in each bus for the trip to Fort Meade on Saturday morning at 9 a. m. The trip home will be made Sunday evening.

The local chairman on arrangements stated that Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, yesterday donated enough Celanese silk to Company G to make enough curtains for fifteen windows and two doors for the unit's recreation hall in camp. Local women will fashion the material into curtains next week. The drapes will be blue and gray, the same colors as the regimental insignia.

Second Lieut. Robert Matlick, who has been in command of Company G, will leave Fort Meade next week for Fort Benning, Ga., to take a three months' course at the Officers' Training School. The new edifice includes a new basement, new heating system and re-decorated interior and new electric lights, inlaid linoleum and carpet for the floor. The total cost was nearly $2,200, $4,000 worth of work donated. At this time less than $300 remains to be paid.

$10,000 Damages Sought by Popp

Improper Sale under Rent Dstraint Is Charged in Lawsuit

Damages of $10,000 as a result of an allegedly improper sale under a rent dstraint are asked by Thomas L. Popp in a suit docketed yesterday in circuit court against Sebastian A. Grabenstein.

Popp, represented by Charles G. Watson, attorney, charges that Grabenstein, from whom he rented a storeroom at 400 Goethe street, illegally "seized and detained" merchandise, equipment and fixtures of a grocery, meat market and bakery, valued at $4,000 to satisfy a dstraint for back rent, alleged to total $720.

At a "pretended sale," the suit says, Grabenstein bought the goods himself. No list of the good levied upon was given him, Popp states, nor were they appraised.

Denying that the rent was in arrears more than $19, if that much Popp asserts that he had leased the premises since September 1, 1939, and had always paid the rent promptly each month.

In another suit filed yesterday Louis Weber asks damages of $30 from Raymond Alter for alleged non-payment of a $192 bill for minipians.

The method of shipment or the time of arrival, however, was not known, according to Green.
